Archbishop's Mass

On December 10, Archbishop Joseph Bernardin offered a Mass in honor of the Blessed Virgin Mary for the students and faculty. In an impressive sermon, he explained the interdependence of youth and adults in our world today.

During the liturgy, Jim Johnston led the assembly in relevant songs, while some of the girls participated through readings and offertory procession.

The importance of the occasion was heightened by the fact that the archbishop took time out to visit us, although he had to leave immediately afterward to attend a conference in Rome.

FACULTY

Family Spirit

In a joint effort, the administration worked to provide a family atmosphere in the school. Parents and friends were encouraged to meet and exchange views; teachers and students tutored those who had subject difficulty; seniors adopted freshmen. The homeroom period was lengthened to give everyone time enough to pray together, to conduct business, to take an interest in the school, and to become better acquainted with others. This togetherness was a good experience.

ACADEMICS

Religion

Varied courses, such as films, marriage, friendship, and morals gave students an overall view of religion. Scripture and liturgy provided religious background to all courses, while guest speakers added interest to the classes. To illustrate the full extent of the religious program, Father Apking, department chairman, together with Sister Estelle, constructed a comprehensive chart showing parishes, courses, related subjects, and social effects.

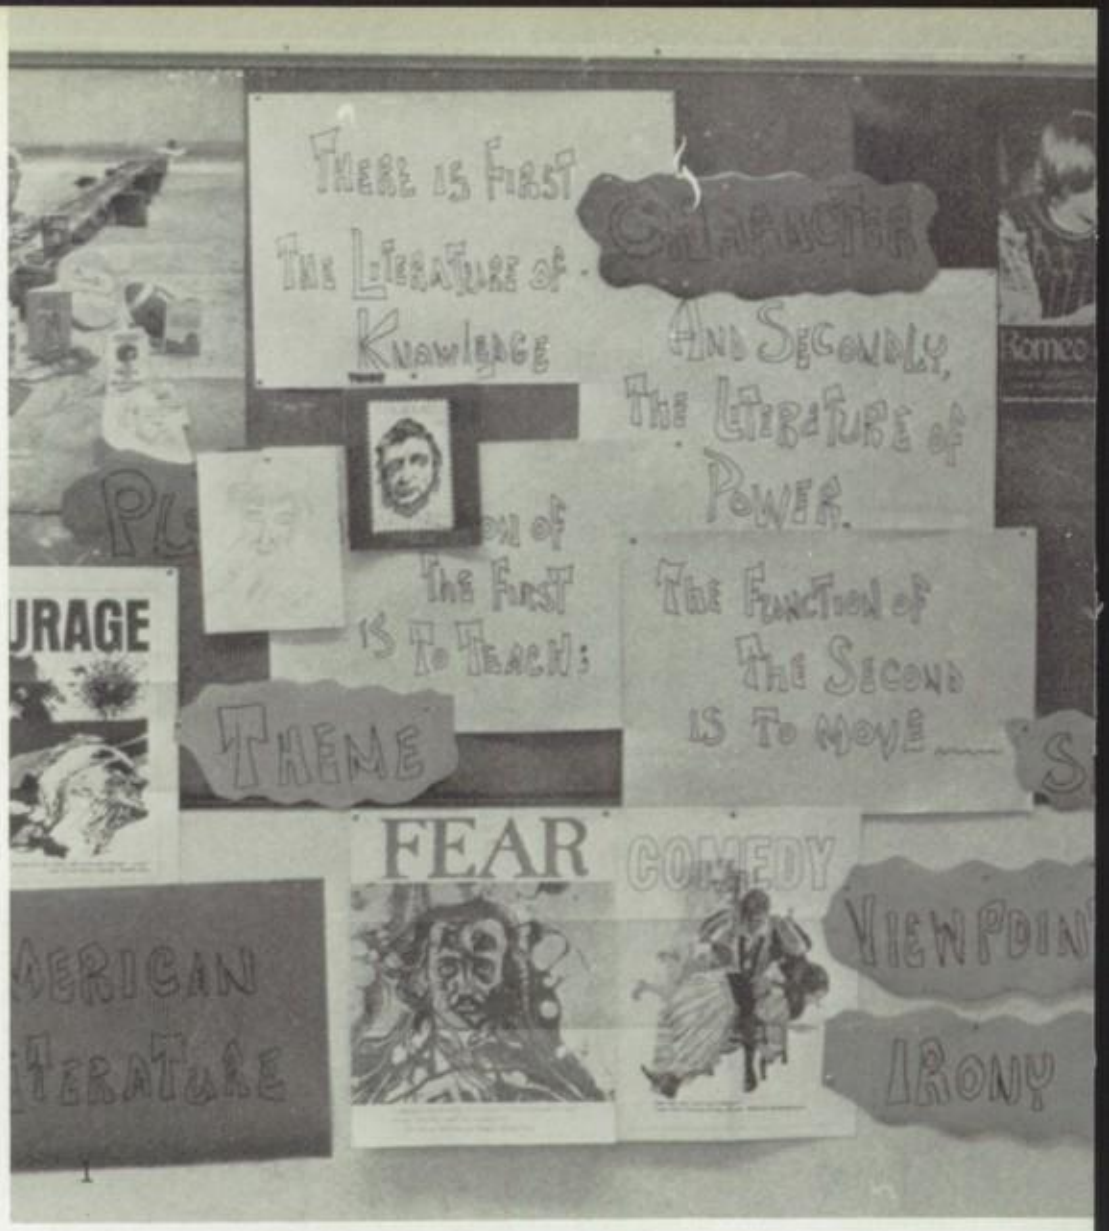
2

1. Sr. Loretta Mick, S.F.P., from the Archdiosesan Office of Religious Education, studies Community of Faith.
2. Senior Religion Class is never dull.
3. Games used for quizzes not only supply fun but present a challenge.
4. Eleanor Hogan, Debbie Brackman, Ellen Fitzpatrick and Beth Kemphues make friendship posters.
5. Fr. Apking meets with a discussion group in his Junior Religion Class.

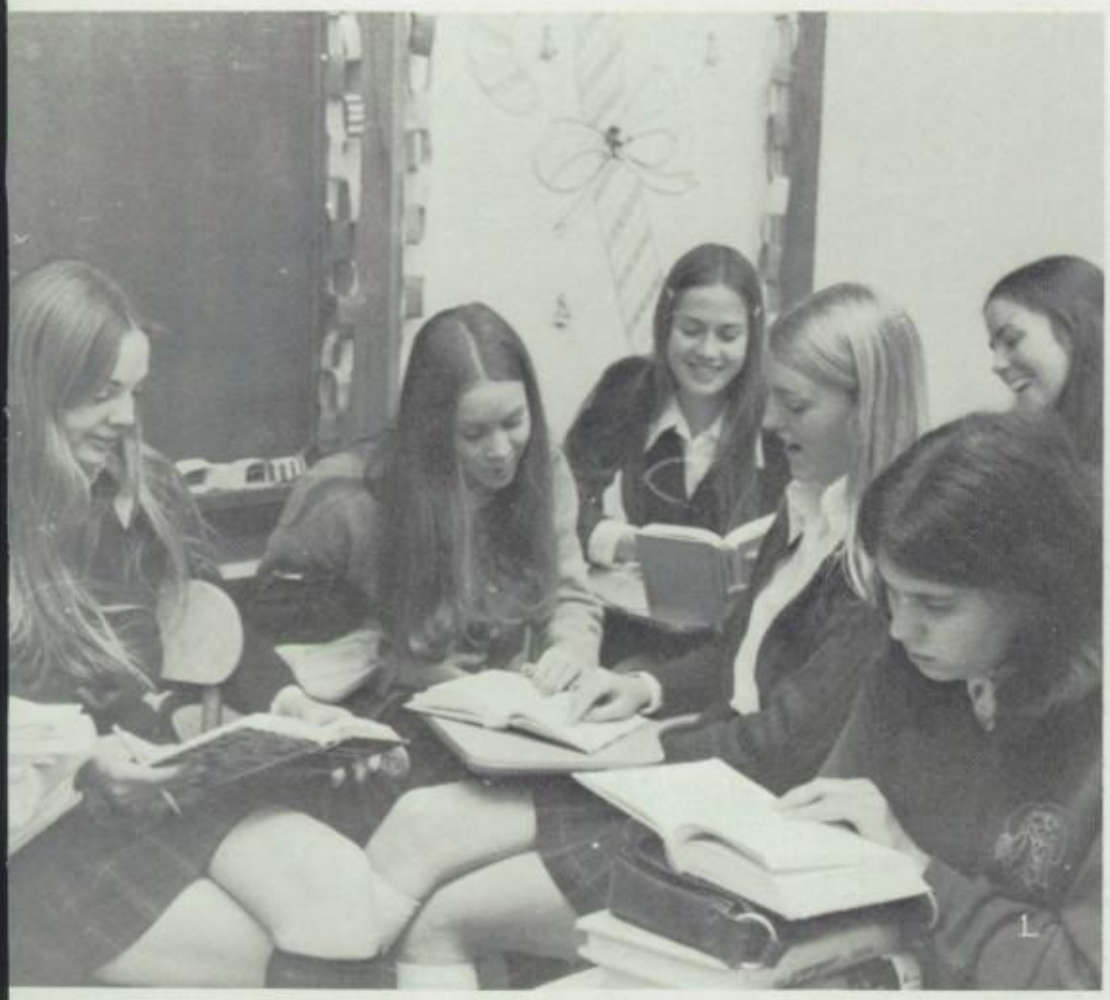
English

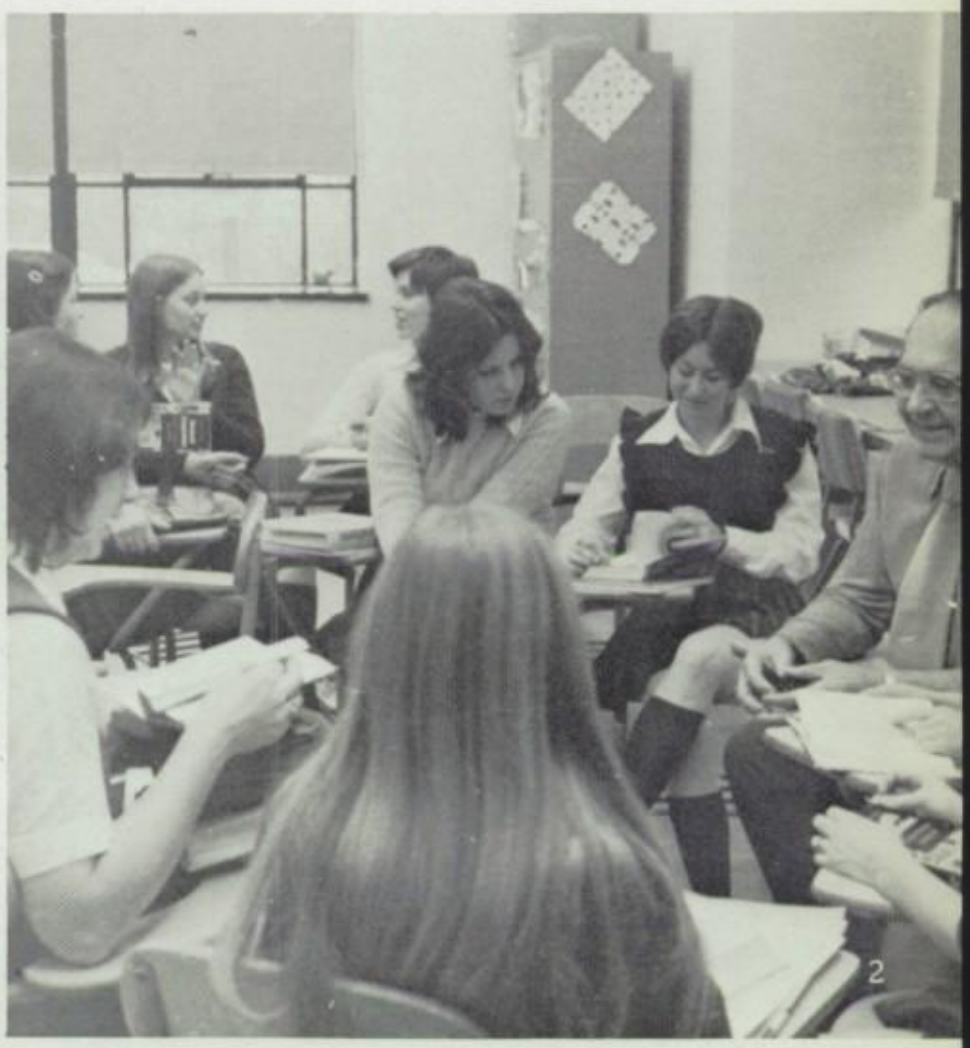
While freshmen and sophomores studied standard courses in literature, juniors and seniors were free to choose their own English curriculum.

The elective classes included: Shakespeare, vocabulary, humanities, novels, English and American literature. Freshmen also studied drama for one quarter of the year.



1. American Literature is portrayed on bulletin Board.
2. Joyce Marshall makes her escape, as Kim Lally and Ann Sermersheim play their parts in "West Side Story".
3. Christine Newman and Tracey Carter practice telephone etiquette.





1. In Miss Brennan's Junior English Class, Diane Rumpke proves a point from the American Literature book.
2. Mrs. Borcer challenges Micky Donohue's answer.
3. Sr. Bernice's English Class sits in wrapped attention.
4. Mrs. Stacey's Humanities Class enjoys a funny joke.

Science

Every student in biology, chemistry, physics, and freshman science was required to submit a project during first semester. Many of these were used in the Academic Fair which was held in January.

Through these and like activities, students gained a basic knowledge of scientific principles, along with additional information in the fields in which they were interested.

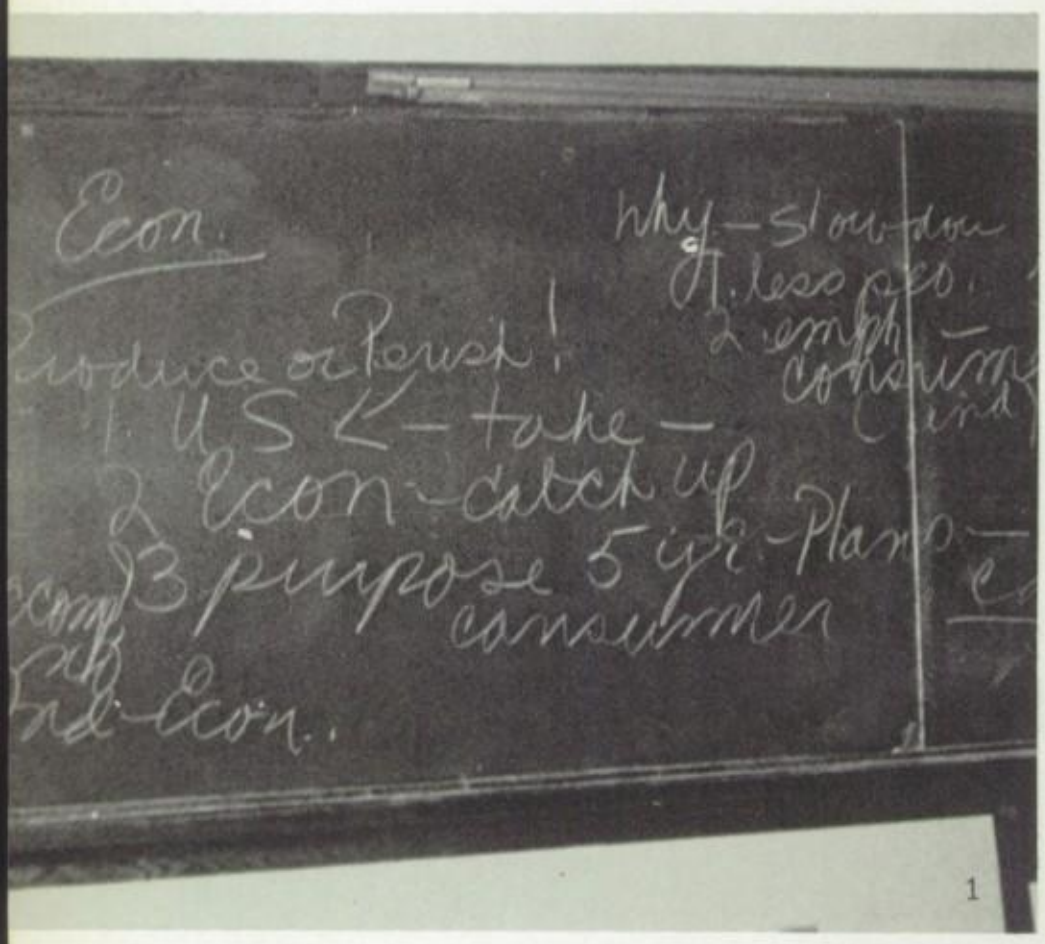
3

1. Famous picture in Room 310.
2. Liz Heckler and Mary Rekers test the action of a slinky.
3. Sister Donna listens as Debbie Souza and Amy Weiner explain their projects to the class.

1. Candy Becraft and Sharon Webb demonstrates types of dinasours in Sister Laure's class.
2. Joanne Williams presents her biology experiment to class.
3. Michele Miller, Terese Geiser and Debbie Schwemberger measure speed in Sister Donna's class.

1. Mrs. McKinney was here!
2. Is Debbie Sicking studying Spanish in World Cultures again?
3. POD in 305.



1

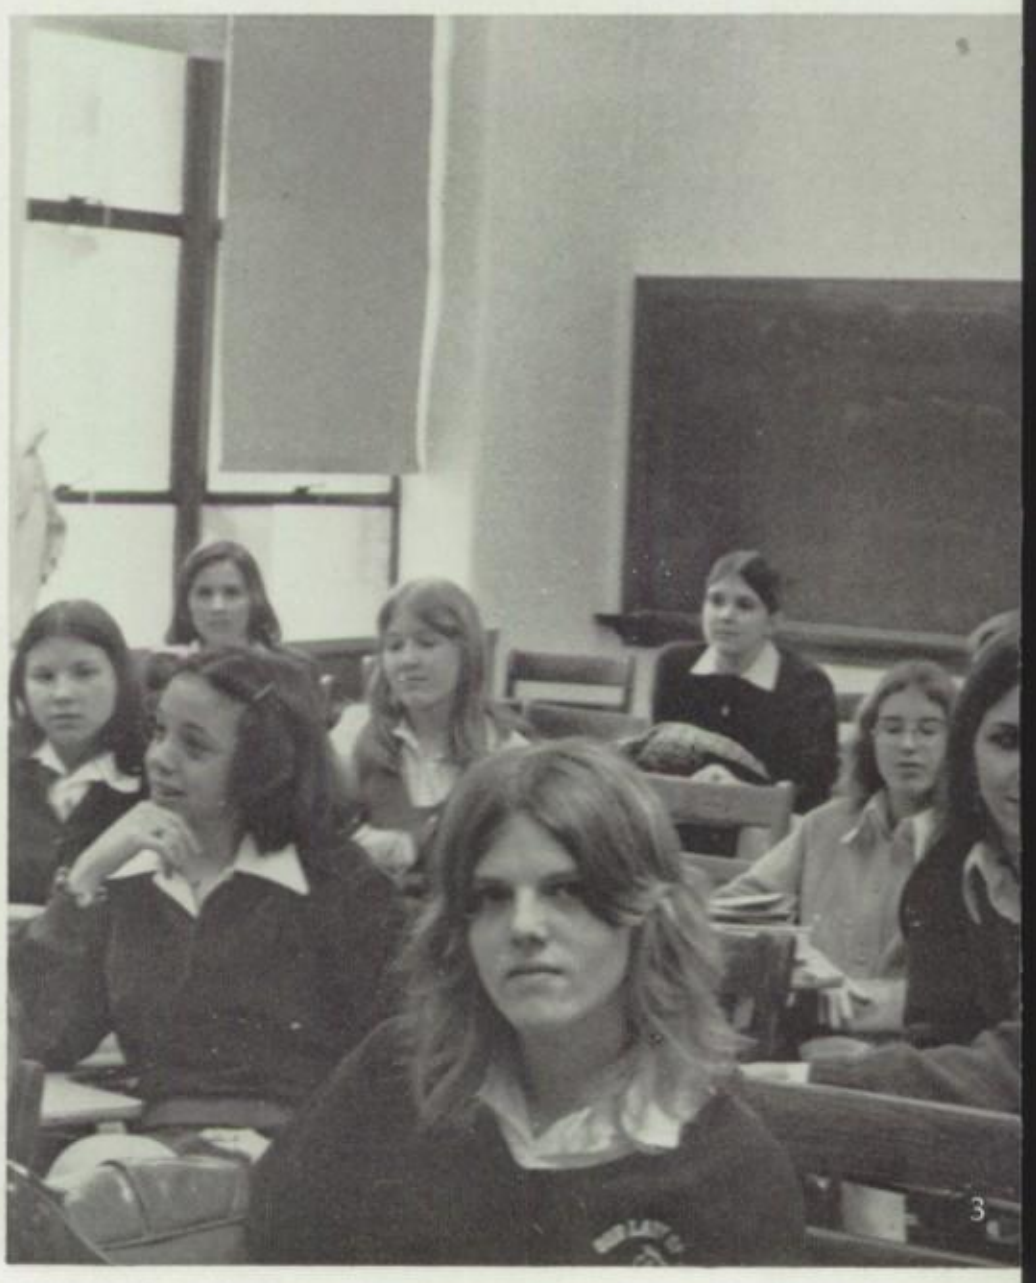
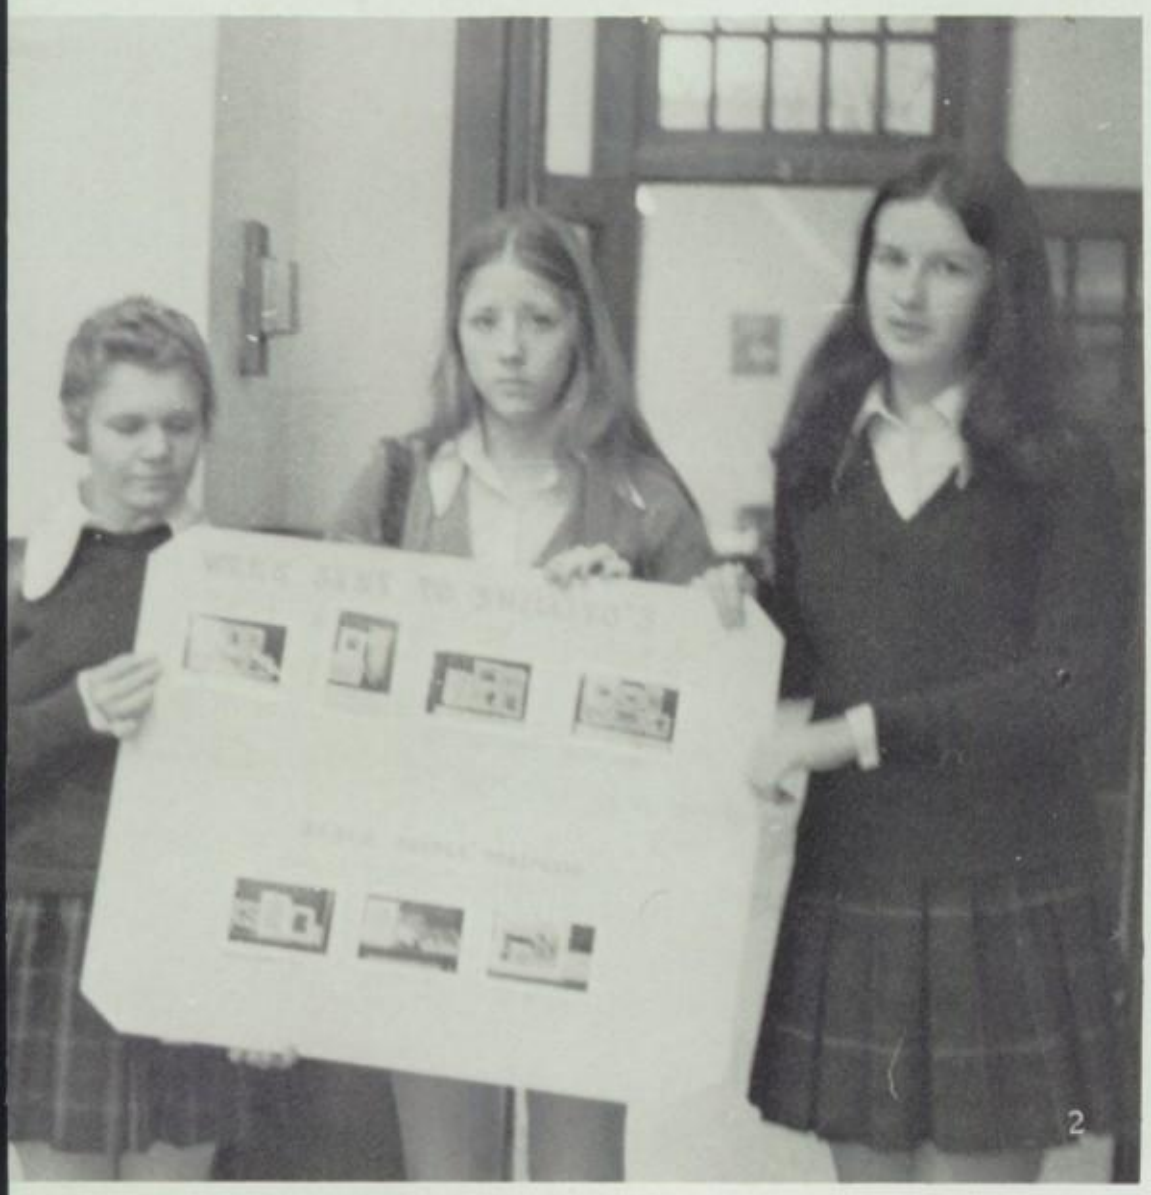
Social Studies

Social Studies classes were especially designed to help students appreciate the world around them. Sophomores studying World Cultures became acquainted with history and customs of different people. United States History included the growth of political systems in our nation. In addition to these prescribed courses, government, economics, and sociology formed Problems of Democracy requirement for students.



3



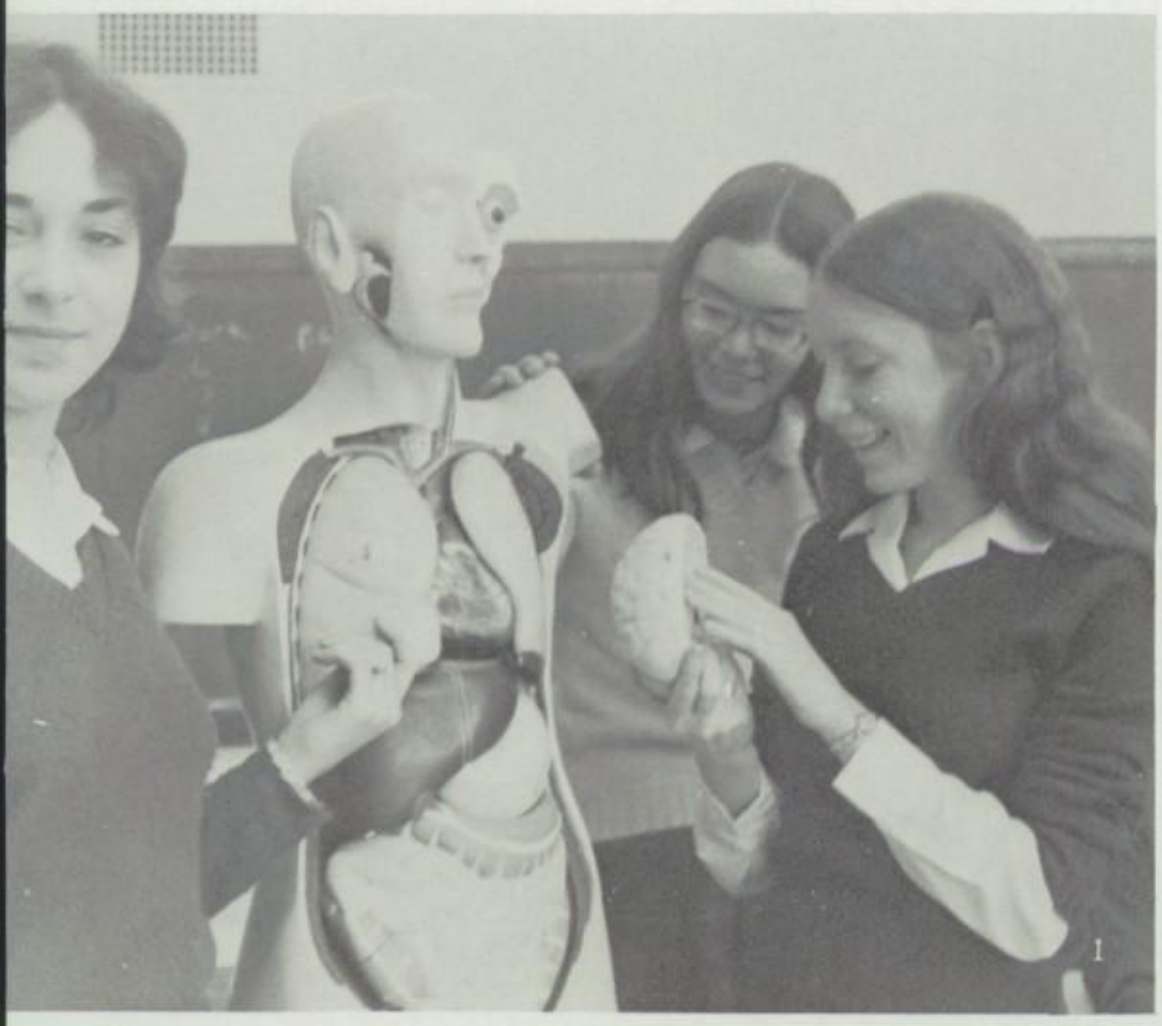
1. Mr. Walters demonstrates a glazing technique to Art I Class at PJ Ceramic Shop.
2. Cindy Rumpke, Debbie Mees, and Lisa Pennekamp hold the display board showing Shillito entries.
3. Jana Eckerle, Karen Doppes, Amy Fitzgibbons, and Debbie Kappner paint a Christmas reindeer.

Gym

Physical Education became an exciting class, as students learned to play speed-away, basketball and volleyball. New equipment such as the uneven parallel bars also enabled students to broaden their gymnastic experience.

Having completed their required studies, juniors and seniors studied fencing, badminton, and tennis, while sophomores learned to play ping-pong.

1. Mary Hilling shows off her fencing equipment after a duel.
2. Carol Geiger protects herself against Joyce Bushelman, while learning the procedures of self-defense.
3. Janet Camardo shows her talent on the new uneven parallel bars.



Health

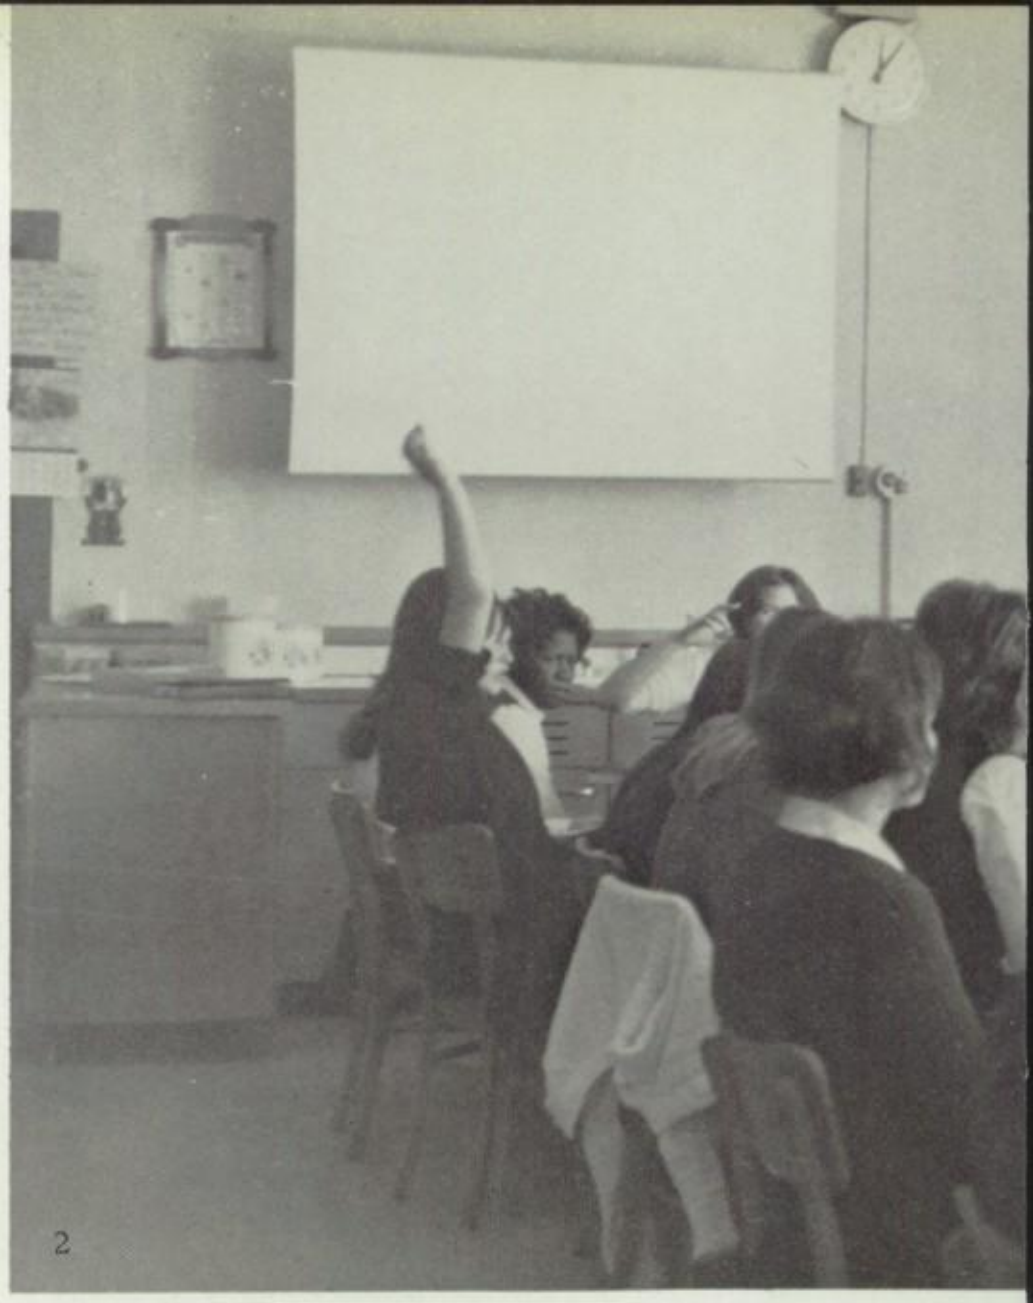
Students of health became acquainted with such basic facts as purpose of body functions, daily health care, and the effects of some drugs on the body. Although studying health sometimes became repetive, the knowledge gained was indeed valuable for each girl.

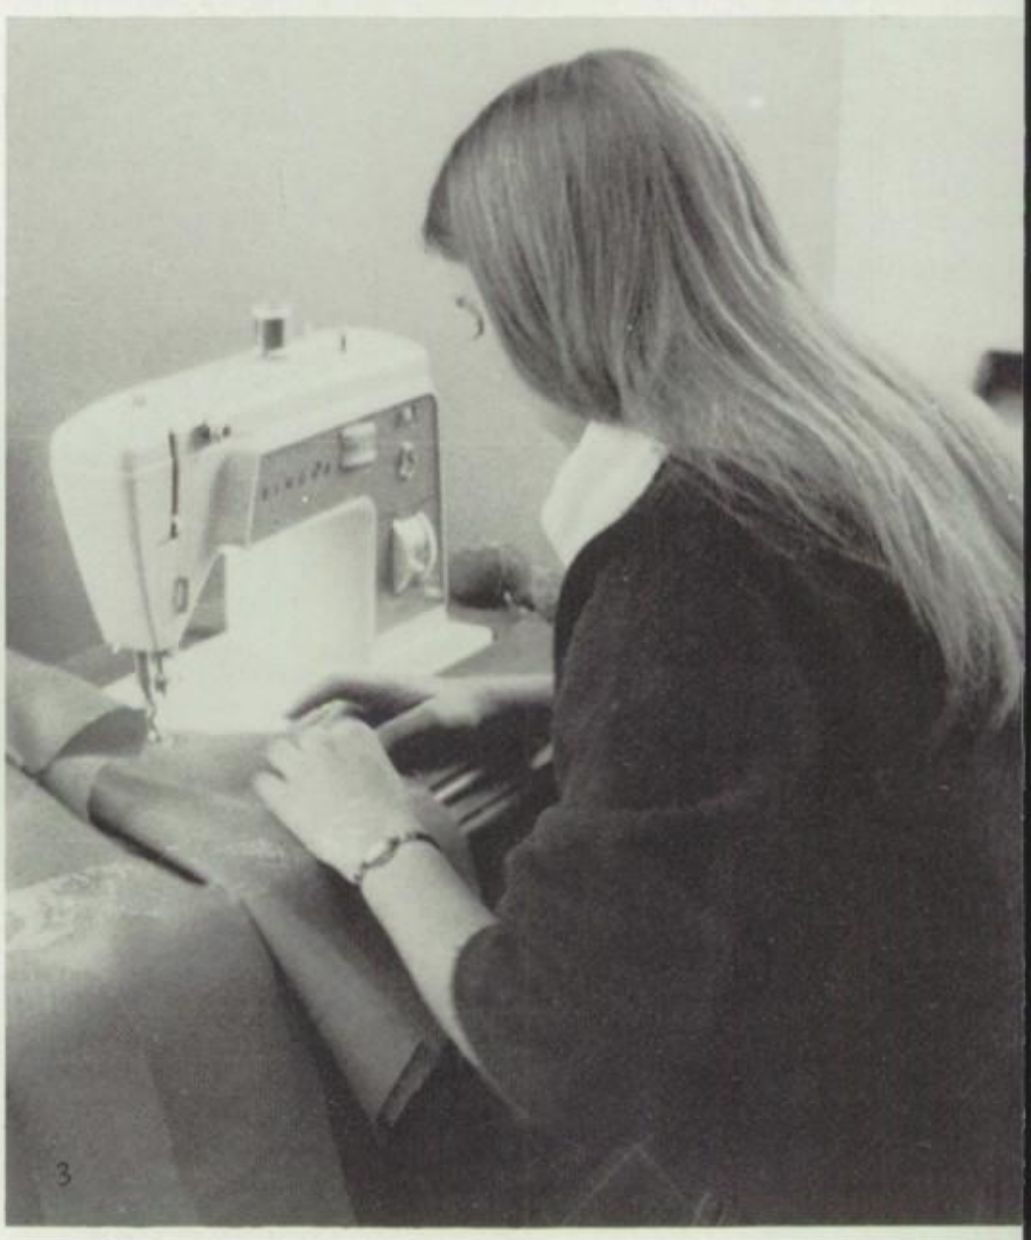
1. Karen Corey, Judy Honebrink, and Ellen Fitzpatrick inspect man's parts.
2. Mr. Ottke's Freshmen Health 307.
3. Sister Laure's Health Class.

Home Economics

Any good home-makers? Girls electing Clothing I showed a strong desire to merit this title as they studied basics in machine and hand sewing. Second-year students advanced to construction techniques, preparing for Clothing III, where home furnishings and related arts were taught.

Besides the above course, foods (meal planning, budgeting, nutrition, and table setting) was offered along with contemporary living to complete the education of our future home-makers.





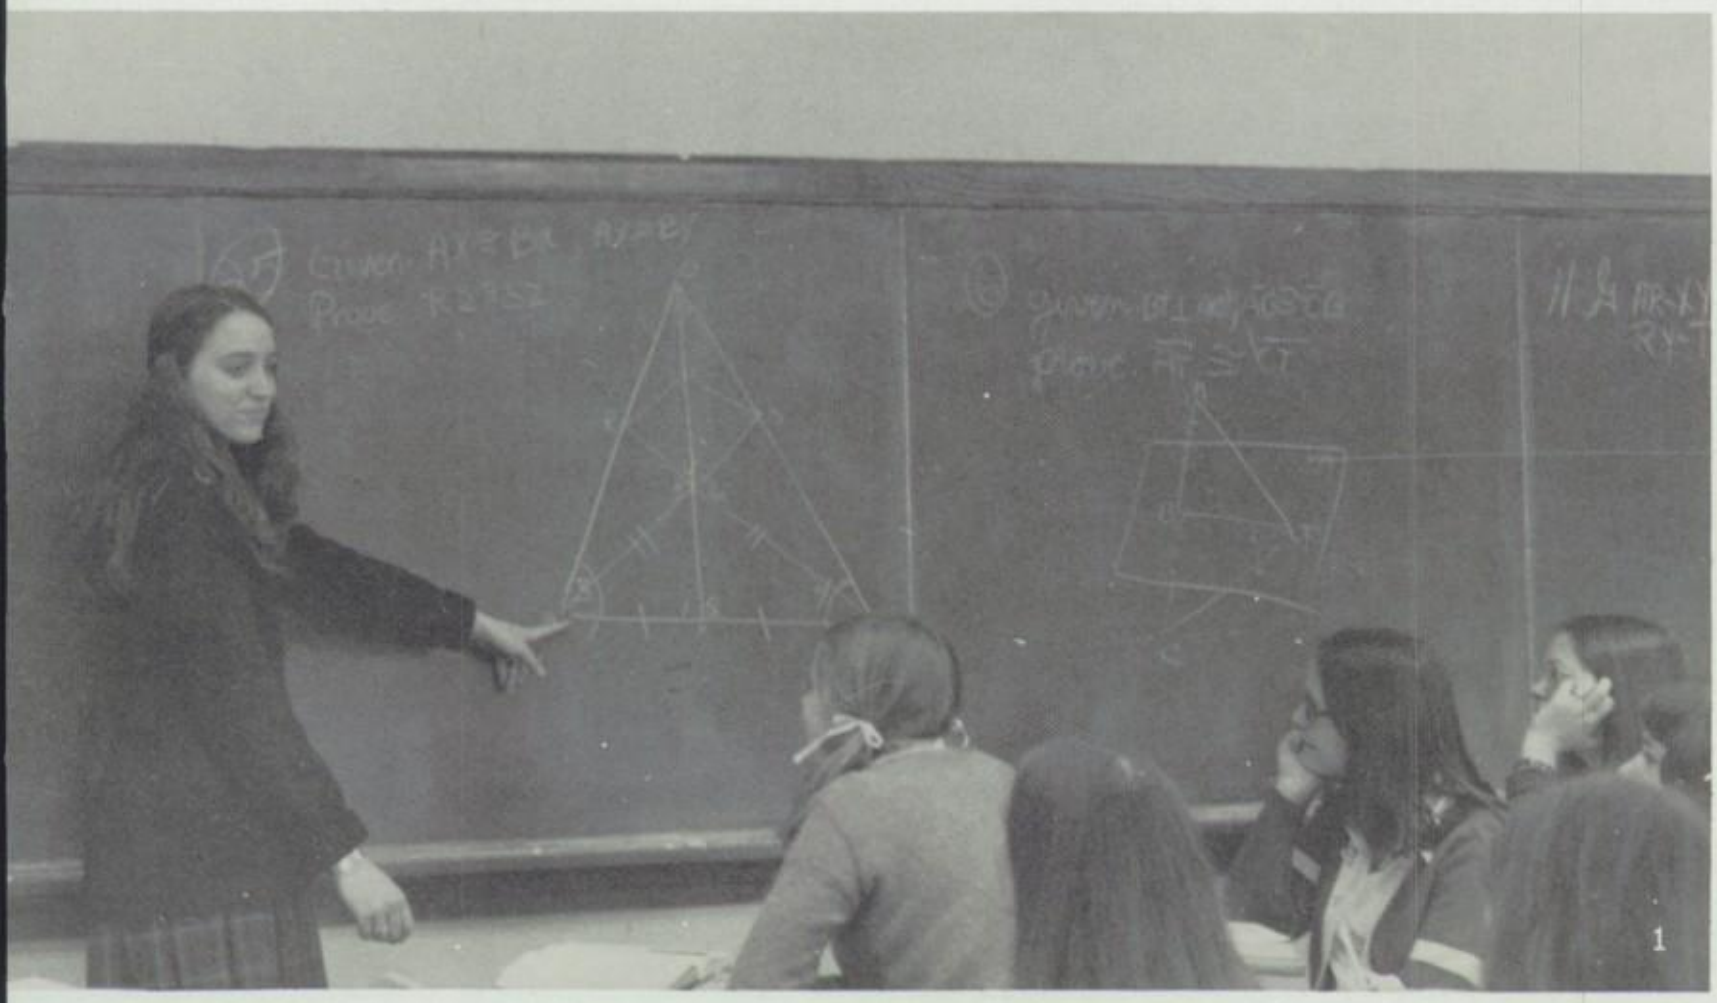
1. Ola Echoles does some hand sewing on her dress.
2. The foods class takes a break from cooking to discuss other important topics.
3. The sewing machine gives Judy Vondenbenken a little help with her pants.

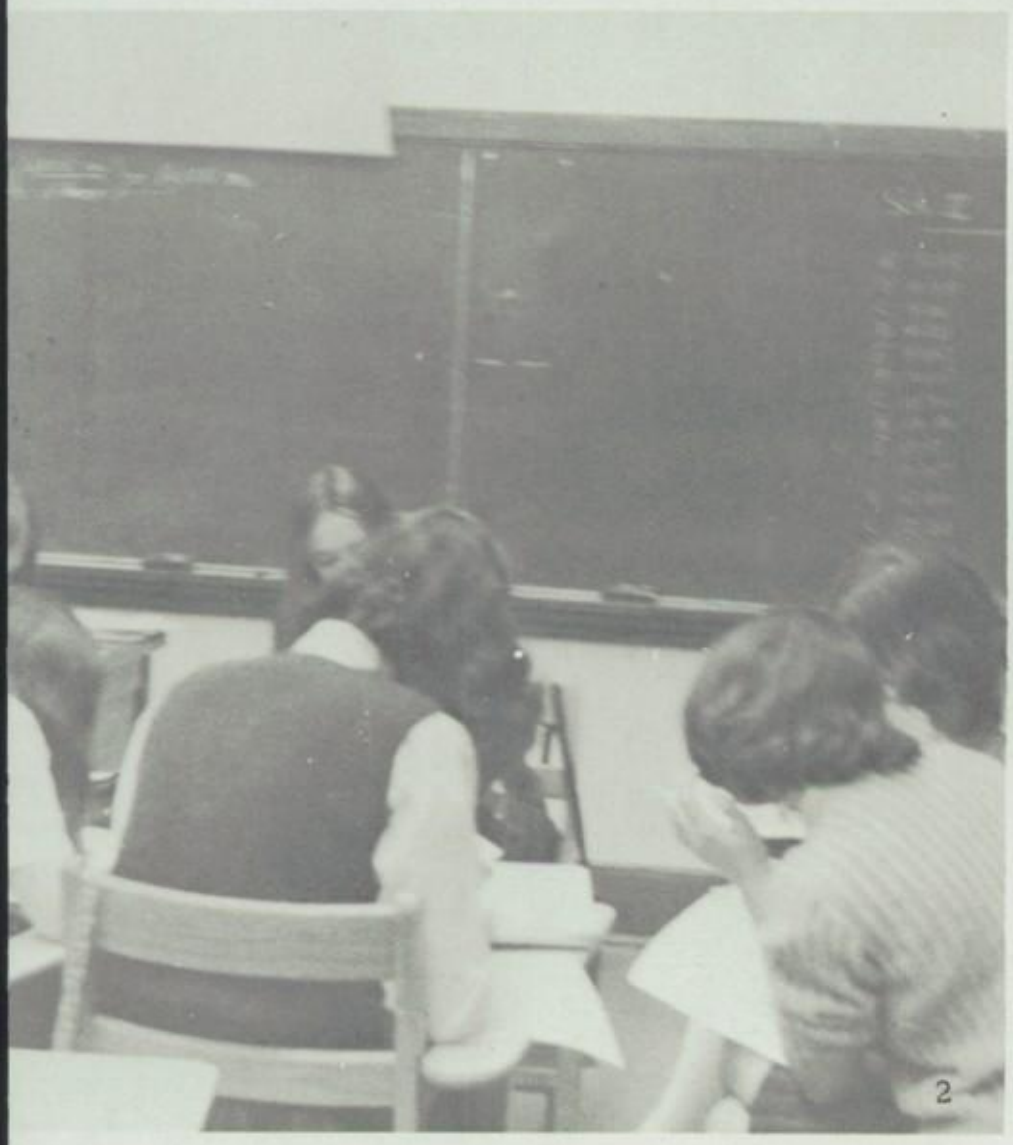
1. Colleen Gilligan and Angela Trotta see themselves in sparkling clean dishes.
2. Gail Doppes takes the first step toward a new dress.

Mathematics

Since Math is a foundation course for other subjects, each student took the course most suited to her needs. Introduction to Math explained number systems, while Algebra I & II extended this basic knowledge to complex numbers. Math IV related Algebra to Geometry. To add a little spice, four girls attended Calculus Class at Roger Bacon.

1. Concepts of Geometry in 205.
2. "Tell us about it, Carol"!
3. So whose the one with all the answers!





1. Tina Klosterman demonstrates her proof in Miss Kentrup's Geometry Class.
2. Group work in Mrs. Frazier's Geometry Class.
3. Jo Ann Kroeger, Mary Meiners, and Nan Scheidler return form their calculas at Roger Bacon. Absent: Patty Junker

Music

Freshmen Chorus, Senior Chorus, and Quin Trio each makes its unique contribution to the fine arts at O. L. A. School concerts, Christmas caroling, contest, and liturgical functions provide these groups with a variety of programs.

THIRD ROW: Marilyn Grant, Sherri Fuller, Beth Kemphues, Marianne DeBaum, Brenda Brydon, Edna Richards, Amy Kemphues, Ann Knapp, Kim Black

Business

Busy sounds were heard throughout second floor south, as our business department worked from first bell to last. Students taking principles of business, sales, business fundamentals, clerical office practice, bookkeeping, notehand, shorthand, typing, and extensions of these courses were responsible for these sound effects.

Closing doors betrayed the return of co-op students from St. Bernard High for afternoon classes.

The pride of the department, however, was the Model Office featured at the Academic Fair.

1. Lynn Helms, Ruth Klosterkemper and Tudy Kemen enjoy their class in Business Fundamentals.
2. Judy Kunkel finishes her typing assignment before the others.
3. Shorthand students work efficiently under Sister Mary Roche.
4. Judy Huber and Kathy Halloran check balances in bookkeeping.

2

1. Donna Laake learns the keyboard.
2. Junior Typing Class prove their skill.
3. Cate Donovan anticipates an error.

1. Jeanne McDonough, Kathy Rekers, and Mary Bode are busy making Piñatas for the Christmas Club.
2. Annette Braun and Tammy Klosterman prepare crêpe suzettes.
3. Debbie Mahlenkamp anticipates Open House visitors.

1. MEMBERS OF CIRCLE FRANCOIS - 1st ROW: Carol Rathman, Patty Bischak, Sandi Wiethorn, 2nd ROW: Suzanne Glynn, Sue Kalvin, Sue Courchene, Kathy Pahren.
2. Debbie Sicking and Donna Schwieter research the past.

Languages

Conversational languages developed skills of listening, speaking, reading, and writing. They not only stressed pronunciation, but taught the importance of past history in relation to the way people live and think now. Slides, filmstrips, field trips, and language lab equipment were used to improve skills.

While the Spanish classes formed a club of their own, the French group affiliated with Circle Francois for outside activities.

Scarlet Oaks

Although some students attend Scarlet Oaks Vocational High, they still hope to graduate from OLA.

Attending Sister Rose Carmel's religion class on Tuesdays after the regular school day, Moniąc Brannen, Sandy Mendel, Kathy O'Hara, Regina Brannen, and Betsy Scheeler "keep in touch." Theresa Sparer and Judy Hamburg also attend Scarlet Oaks.

Student Council

In order to eliminate the problem of too many people, Student Council was composed of only one representative from each homeroom, along with anyone else who was interested in helping.

A leadership workshop was held to help the reps carry out their duties.

Traditional dances and spiritual days along with two retreats and a fashion show, were some of the activities sponsored by the group. Pride Day helped to establish a sense of pride in all the students.

At the end of the year, campaigns were held before the election of new officers.

1. Religious Committee discusses plans for In-School Spiritual Day.
2. Kim Lorenz conducts a meeting

Beta Sigma

Beta Sigma worked to ahcieve two goals: to provide support and leadership for black students at OLA, and to improve human relations between black and white students.

Support and leadership became realities when black students assumed the responsibility of Student Council committee membership.

During Black History Week, a definite effort was made to deepen the relationships between black and white students.

The final project for the year was a variety show co-sponsored by Student Council and Beta Sigma.

IT WAS A VERY GOOD YEAR, but hopefully, WE'VE ONLY JUST BEGUN!

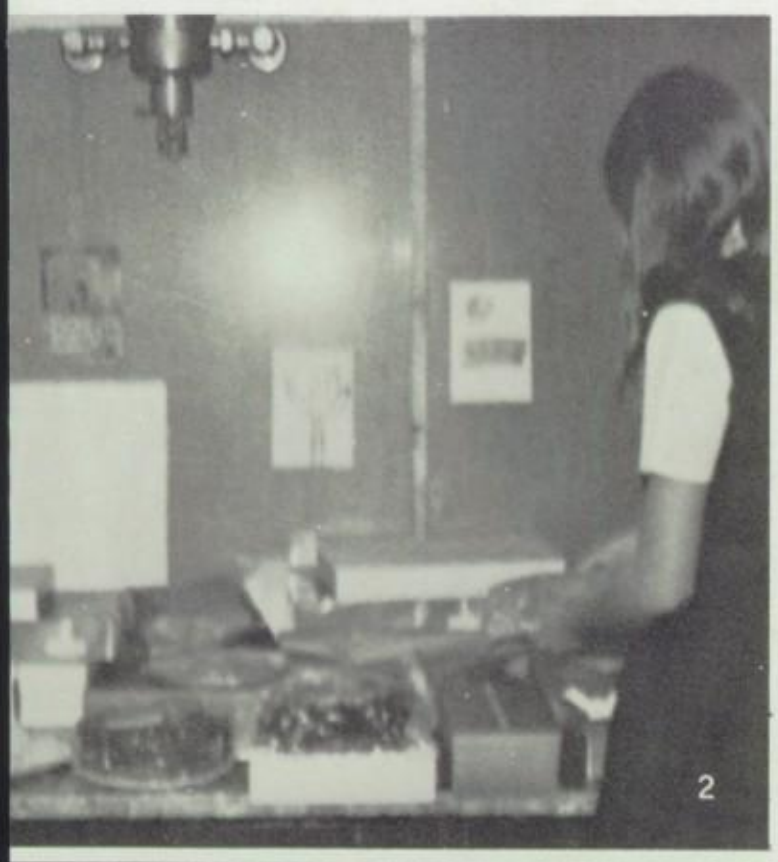
S.T.O.P.

S.T.O.P., because it is a non-profit organization, sponsored bake sales, raffles, and popcorn sales. The money made from these activities was used for the Sisters of New Guinea Missions. It helped finance a trip for active S.T.O.P. members to the Appalachians, and helped some families besides.

True to their motto: "We try to provide for the needs of the needy," S.T.O.P. also held parties for children in the education unit of Longview State Hospital.



1. A few S.T.O.P. members eagerly await the chance to help you.

4. What's that? S.T.O.P. feeding Teri Fister again!

Red Cross

Besides taking an active part in coordinating projects with the National Junior Red Cross, members explained the organization's role to parents at Open House, sold charms for Christmas, and collected change in the cafeteria to boost school membership. The officers also assisted in the planning of a leadership workshop for the Cincinnati Chapter.

In view of the local tornado's devastation, the Red Cross was especially happy to make a substantial contribution to the downtown office.

1. Judy Geiger, Regina Payne, Lori Gray, Beth Masters, and Toni Baitz add a spark to the fire plug.
2. Co-leaders Judy Geiger and Lori Gray wait for parents at Open House.

Spanish Club

Although primarily social, this group had as its main goal the desire to educate the Spanish student, in both language and custom, beyond her normal classroom experience. It tried to develo in the student, a sense of worldwide brotherhood and a desire for continued study and/or travel to other countries.

Drill Team

The Angellettes, OLA's colorful drill team, added sparkle and zest to all the parades and events in which they participated. The green and gold of their uniforms, their white boots and gloves, together with golden pom poms enhanced the rows of these high stepping precision marchers.

Some of the major parades throughout the city and surrounding areas included Loyalty Day, Memorial Day, Fourth of July, Veteren's Day, and the St. Patrick's Day Parade. The Angellettes also performed on Freshmen Orientation Day and various other school functions.

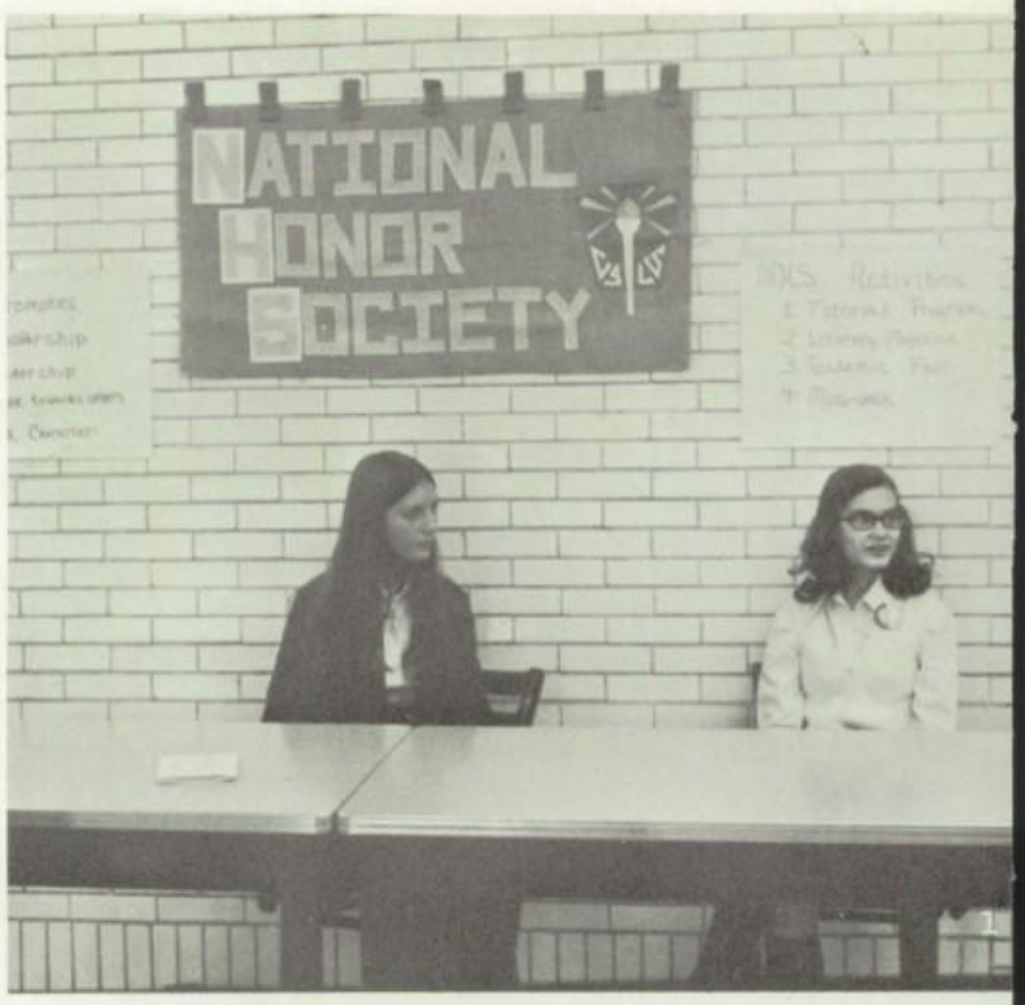
National Honor Society

National Honor Society, an honorary organization, endeavored to promote scholarship, leadership, service, and good character.

Activities included the following:

1) Organizing the tutoral program
2) Helping plan and sponsor the Academic Fair
3) Printing the literary magazine
4) Initiating new members

All students who were part of the National Honor Society could truly be proud of their membership.



1. Jo Ann Kroeger and Mary Meiners represent N. H. S. at Open House.

3. Julie Laux shares her happiness with parents and friends.
4. Sharon Ochs receives carnation from Mary Meiners.

Herald

The "Herald Club" was absorbed more or less into regular class meetings, its principal function being the production of four issues of HERALD and a bi-monthly OLA NEWSBOARD.

There were four editors for every newsboard. Each board had a set of editors responsible for getting it all together. Final lay-out work was usually done over weekends.

Paste-ups on the printed HERALD were done much the same way as the newsboard. There was only one editor assigned, however, on the printed issues.

Few people realized the work that went into these productions, but both were very much appreciated by the students.

1. Members: ROW 1: Nola Shirley, Peg Teed, Kathy Mueller, Nancy Webster ROW 2: Teri Fister, Nancy Anneken, Amy Bischak, Mary Hilling, Jane Mueninghoff, Janet Camardo ROW 3: Barb Moeller, Donna Seig, Diane O'Neil, Cheryl Williams ROW 4: Rosemary Dechering, Jean Rolfsen, Pat Boles, ROW 5: Sheila Spalding, Jewel Brown, Melinda Martin
2. OLA NEWSBOARD features special people every two weeks.
3. Pat Boles, Amy Bischak, Mary Kuhn, and Nancy Webster paste-up THE HERALD.

Amaranth Editorial Staff

Now that we've come to the end of the year, the Amaranth Staff of layout artists, writers, photographers, fine artists, editors, and final checkers look with expectation toward seeing our production.

We hope that the hours we have spent between 2:30 and 4 every Wednesday and Thursday of the school year have been successfully used in portraying the events of this school year; that the memories we have recorded will keep them fresh in the hearts of all of us at OLA.

Photographers: Diana Schuman, Karen Huff, and Theresa Milazzo.

Amaranth Business Staff

Two drives are necessary for publication of the yearbook--the ad drive and the subscription drive. The Business Staff headed by Barb Moeller, Mickey Donohoue, Joan Willike, and Rosemary Deckering should be congratulated for their untiring efforts in both of these endeavors.

Miss Helen Coard, faculty moderator directed the projects to completion, announcing class competition for the ad drive in this order: the seniors--108%, sophomores--104%, freshmen--62%, and juniors 45% of their goals. In all, 550 books were sold, indicating that just about every family will have an annual to enjoy.

Thanks to all of you from all of us!

4. Let's practice that shot again!

1. Reserves get a little practice in before the game.
2. What's everybody waiting for?
3. O.L.A. scores a point.

Tennis and Track

Under the direction of Father Apking, the new tennis team promises to be another great sport for OLA. Matches were booked for McNicholas, Ursula, Mercy, and Marian during the month of May.

Track and field events were held at Bacon Stadium on May 15, when our Track Team competed with nine Catholic High Schools. Would you believe it? We tied for third!

ACTIVITIES

Mother-Daughter Dinner Father-Daughter Breakfast

On September 19, daughters treated mothers to a buffet dinner. Presenting a history of good grooming and cosmetics, Mrs. Schwartz took participants down the years for a look at "good looks."

At a similar gathering, held on December 2, the girls and their fathers enjoyed sausage and eggs (not green) in the cafeteria. Father Dan Kroger invoked the blessing, and Mr. Paul Mecklenborg delivered the speech concerning educational freedom.

Both events gave students and parents opportunity to enjoy one another's company in the school environment.

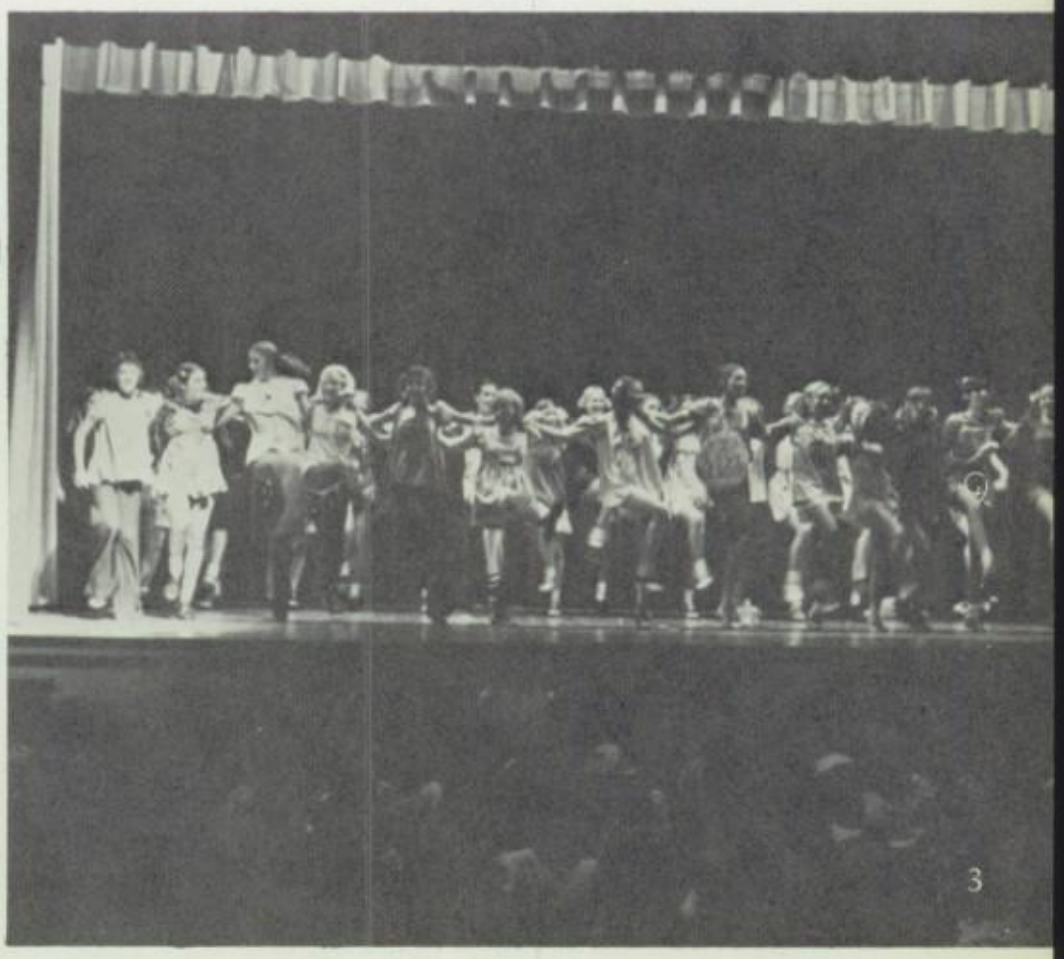
1. Mrs. Jane Schwartz of Vanda Make-Up talks about good grooming and cosmetics at the Mother-Daughter Dinner.
2. Mothers and daughters enjoy dinner together.
3. Mr. Paul Mecklenborg talks about Citizens for Educational Freedom at Father-Daughter Breakfast.

Senior-Freshie Day

Senior-Freshie Day was held on October 7. Seniors met their little sisters, proceeding to outfit them with baby clothes and beanies. As the freshmen drank from their baby bottles, skits were performed to entertain the audience.

After the get-together, many of the girls retreated to Frisch's, where the frosh got a few stares as well as laughs.

The entire evening was something that will be remembered by both seniors and freshmen for a long time.



1. A few frosh learn how to play ring-around-the rosie.
2. Anne Schindler, Kathy McCullough and Cindy DePue enjoy their Candy.
3. Frosh kick up heels to the delight of the Seniors.

Farmers Formal

Stock full of fun for all who stepped to the music, the Farmers Formal included food, dancing, and a contest for the best-dressed couple.

The gym was cleverly countrified with scarecrows, bales of hay, and tables covered with checked table cloths, pumpkins, and gourds.

Everyone had a great time!

1. Dan Middendorf plays a tune on the musical spoons.
2. Couples dance to the foot-stomping music of Melange.
3. Chris Strupe and Shawn Patrick pose for a minute while reigning Queen and King of the Farmers Formal.

RESULTS:

Sophomores	106.9
Freshmen	66.1
Juniors	62.7
Seniors	25.0

Paper Drive

The annual paper drive was held on the school grounds from March 22 to 24. Classes competed for first prize of $50.00 for their treasury. Pat Boles headed the contest, spending many hours directing helpers and contributors to the large vans provided for each class. Lucky Sophomores!

1. Phyllis Wesley and Pam Spinnenweber also do their part for freshmen.
2. Cindy Rumpke and Teri Fister bring papers for Juniors.

Can Drive

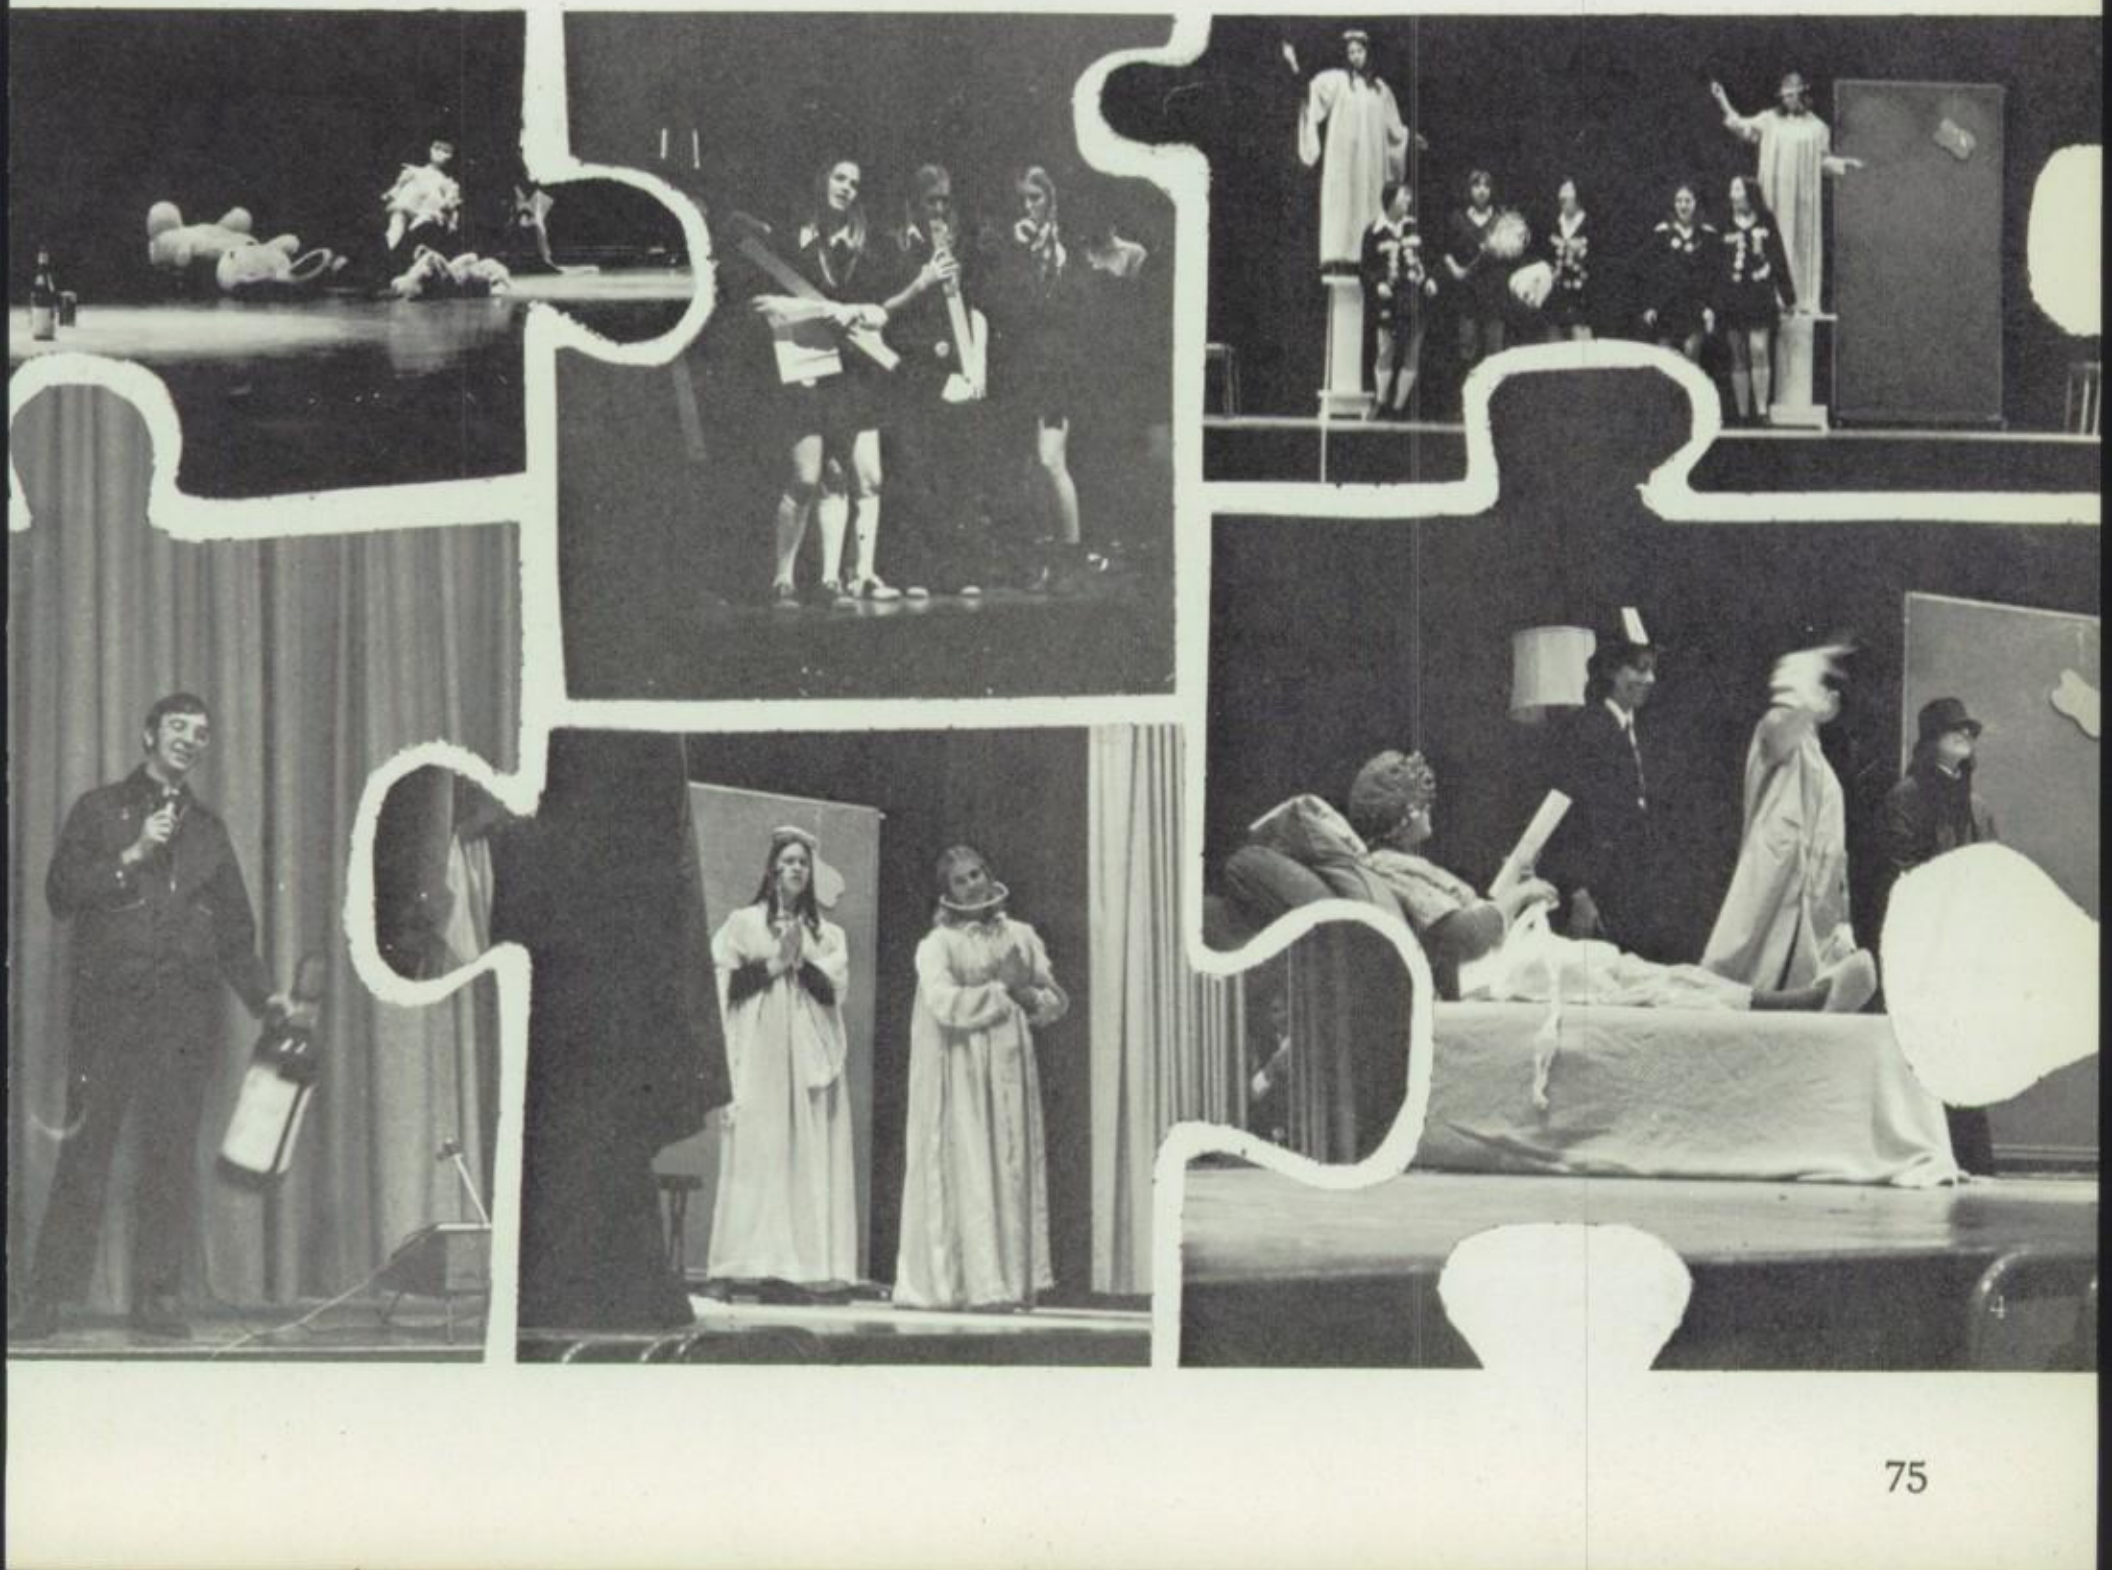
Over twelve thousand cans were collected during the Can Drive to give needy families a better Thanksgiving. Freshmen made a valiant effort, but the Junior tradition held true once more.

The can skit entitled "Alfred Cancock Presents" was presented in two parts. The first act was held on the opening day of the drive to build enthusiasm, while the results were announced at the end of Act II. Yea, Juniors!

1. Regina Gay, alias Alfred Cancock, narrates Can Skit.
2. Teri Fister, Mary Turner, and Peggy Teed take the bad guys parts.

3

3. "75 Can" decorates the front of school.
4. Scenes from the CAN SKIT.



Fall Concert

The Fall Concert given on November 11 featured the Senior Chorus performing "Godspell" and Quin Trio singing "The Lonely Goatherd". Freshman Chorus also gave its first performance, including "One Tin Soldier".

Mr. Robert Borcer, the emcee, introduced Cindy Heis in a ballet solo; an interpretive dance by Sabrina Springs, Crystal Turner, and Denise Turner; a voice solo by Terri Atkins; a piano solo by Marie Budinsky; and an original arrangement by Stephanie Sepate.

1. Stephanie Sepate plays "Love Story" at the Fall Concert.
2. "High on the Hill was a Lonely Goat herd".
3. A solo "Into the Night" is performed by Terri Atkins.

Black History Week

The purpose of this week was to build unity by giving everyone a chance to learn about black culture.

Throughout the week, students and teachers sampled soul food and listened to special speakers who described American society from their perspective.

The event was concluded with a Mass for the entire student body, emphasizing the theme, "We Can Make It."

1. The band "Every Day People" provides entertainment.
2. Father Dennis Kinderman and Father Robert Apking officiate.
3. Kim Terrill, Marie Davis, Donita Spurling, Michele Matthews, Sabrina Springs, and Denise Turner display offertory gifts and bulletin board used during the Mass.

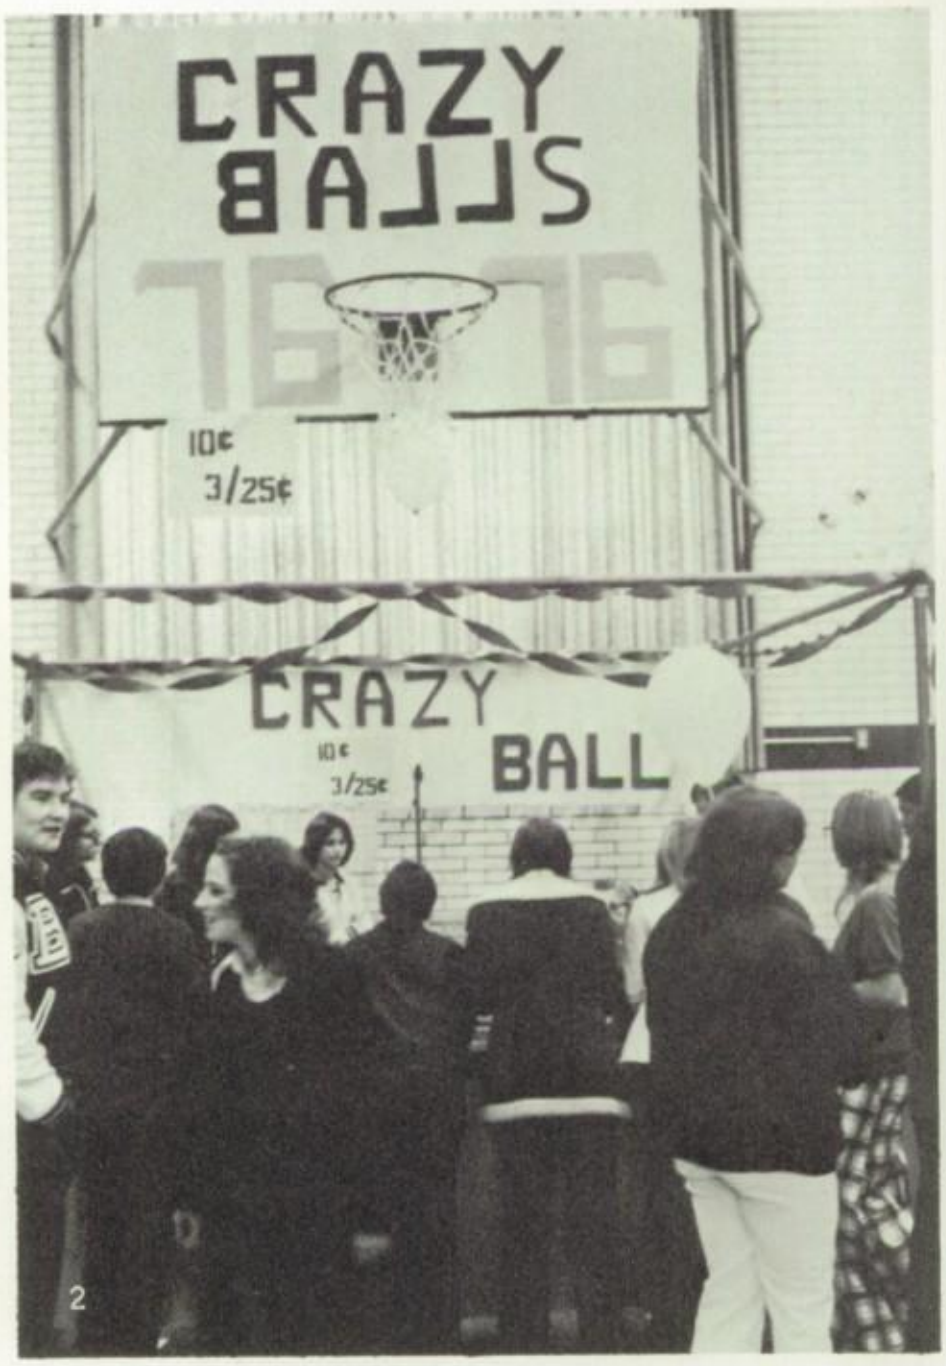
Homecoming

All sorts of attractive booths and exciting games were displayed at the festival, in an effort to raise money for the school. Each class and every adult organization sponsored a booth, and all were rewarded by the sight of the crowds.

The Chance Drive was a brilliant success, with the Class of '75 winning it one more time.



1. Even the jungle found a place at our festival.
2. A crowd gathers at 76's booth.
3. Festival chairman Mickey Donohoue announces winner as Mr. Kohstall calms crowd.

2. There's a break in the action for the class of '77.
3. Juniors go wild as they realize that victory is theirs.

Sweetheart Semi

Kings Island Inn was the setting of this years Sweetheart Semi February 16. Blue Stone Ivory provided the entertainment for the young lovers as they danced to "If I Fell in Love With You."

The evening was climaxed by the announcement of the class sweethearts. Each girl received a candle as a souvenier of this romantic night.

1. SWEETHEART CANDIDATES FRONT: Kathy Sloan, Mary Turner, Lynn Helms, Tina Klosterman, Yogi Wess, Kathy Sammons. BACK: Jean Schwegman, Teri Donohue, Barb Stegman, Pam Harris, Diane Powers, and Annette Tenkman.
2. Dancers get into the rhythm.

7. Everyone joined in the fun.

Festival Chairmen

Festival chairmen let their class in all activities concerning the homecoming. One chairman and two co-chairmen from each class had to oversee all plans for the class booth, and built up support for the chance drive also.

Overall chairmen coordinated all class activities and supervised the selling of chances.

All of the chairmen worked for the good of the school, and with the adult groups, brought this year's total above last year's.

1. Carol Freeman, Sue Kalvin, and Joey Macht
2. Donna Spillane, Janie Barnes, Micky Donohoue, Kathy Sammons, and Chris Wesley
3. Cindy DePue, Debbie Roll, and Linda Wallenhorst
4. Cheryl Lyons, Regina Gay, and Diane Barnes

1. Freshmen prepare hosts for Communion.
2. Theresa Milazzo distributes programs before the Mass.
3. A beautiful background forms the setting for the Mass.

May Mass

During May, the month in which to honor Mary, O. L. A. chose to celebrate with a special Mass. All students were invited to attend, and through their singing and prayers were able to venerate in a way that was meaningful to them.

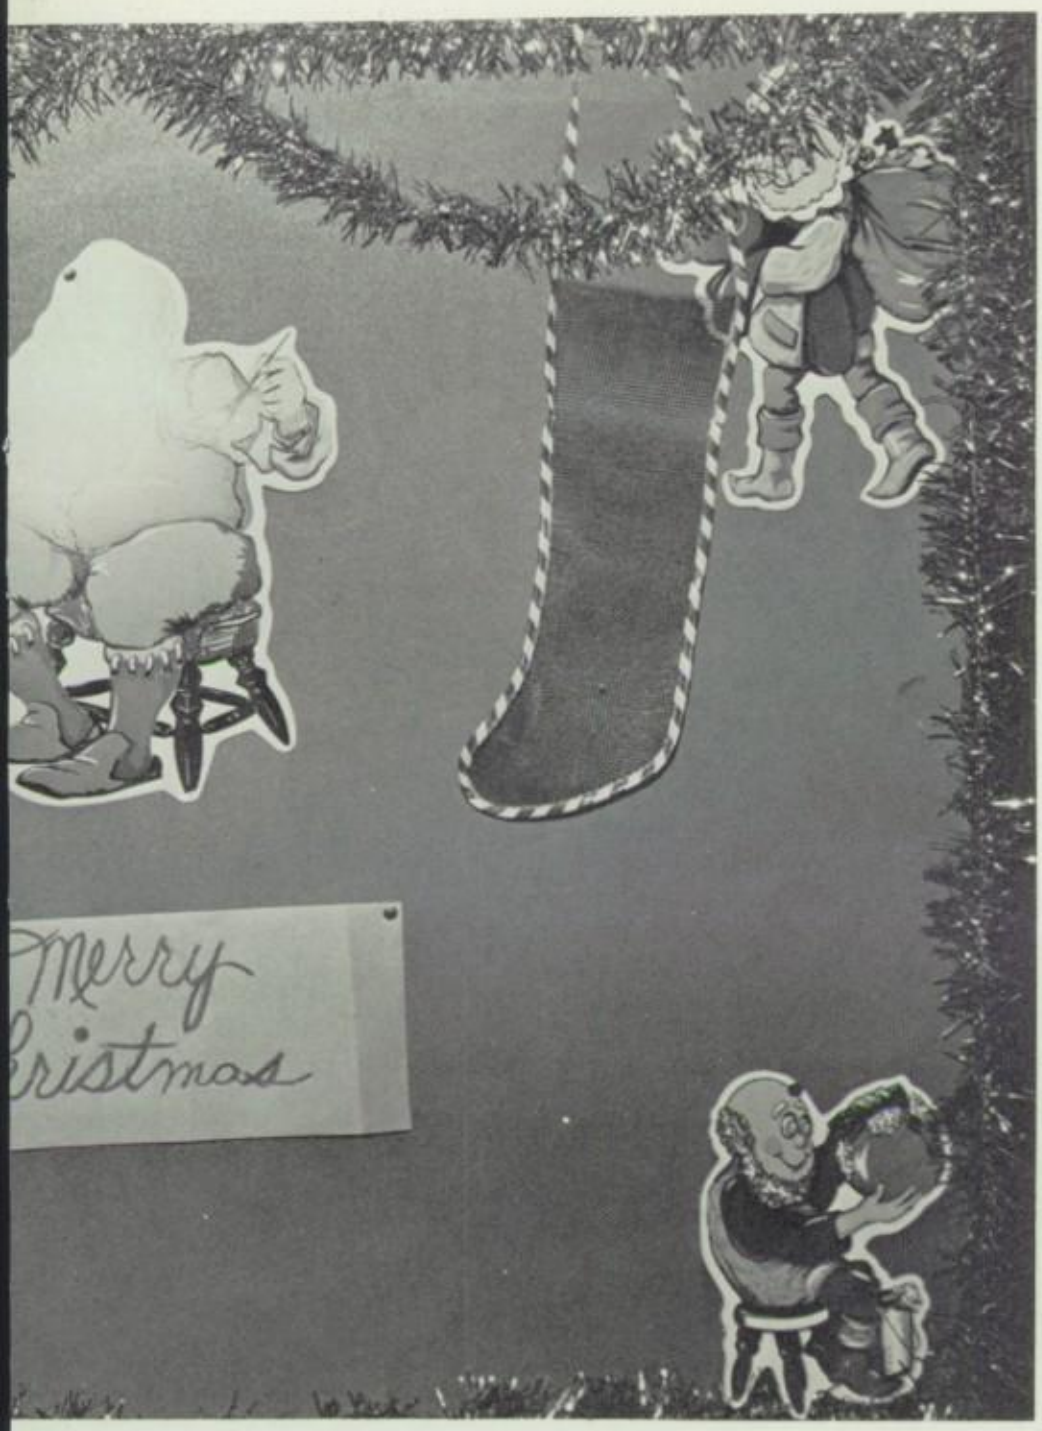
Programs were designed, and flowers were laid at the feet of the statue as special tribute.

Christmas Assembly

Given every year for the students and faculty, the Christmas Assembly was a bit different this time.

Freshmen and Senior Choruses plus Quin Trio supplied the music, while six other students danced to the NUT-CRACKER SUITE. This last feature offered the biggest surprise, because students we never suspected, revealed hidden talents.

1. Christmas Bulletin Boards like this one were seen throughout the building.
2. NUTCRACKER SUITE BALLET: ROW 1 - Cindy Heis, Tracey Callaghan, Ellen Fitzpatrick ROW 2 - Linda Fallon, Donita Spurling, Cate Donavan



1. Mary Kay Roth, Debbie Schwemberger, and Lynn Rebholtz help Santa (Mr. Borcer) and Mrs. Claus (Mrs. McKinney) distribute their Christmas goodies.
2. Oh Santa!!!

Academic Fair

Student Council and the National Honor Society co-sponsored the Academic Fair on January 20. Entries in the subjects of science, math, English, and clothing were judged by experts in their fields. The art department exhibited their work also.

A model office was set up by the business department, with girls acting as receptionists, typists, and other business-orientated occupations.

This is one event that should be encouraged for next year.

7. Garments were judged by others besides the officials.
8. Boys and men are attracted to science.
9. Freshmen hold an exhibit of science too.

Business Groups

In addition to their regular classes, several students successfully completed the Future Data Processors' Course taught by Mr. Charles Kiel, representative for the Data Processing Management Association. Besides attending one class each week, the girls toured the Data Processing Installation at United States Shoe Company.

Another group of thirteen juniors and seniors were received into the National Business Honor Society at an impressive ceremony on March 31. These students received certificates in recognition of their achievements.

1. Betty Harmon, Pat Boles, Linda Fallon, Diane O'Neal, Mary Schlidler
2. Row 1: Brenda Eslinger, Gail Graman, Judy Huber, Maureen Gilmartin, Mary Kuhn
   Row 2: Jean Rolfsen, Paula Weger, Amy Bischak
   Row 3: Tina Wallenhorst, Patty Sammons
   Row 4: Barb Huber, Cheryl Lyons (Absent: Nancy Grimes)

In-School Spiritual Days

OLA's In-School Spiritual Days were held on March 25 and 26. Each girl chose a block of topics that she would like to know more about. Each girl also attended a Mass.

This year juniors and seniors had the option of attending the Spiritual Days or of going on a retreat at Oldenburg, Indiana. Many of the girls took advantage of this opportunity and spent a very enjoyable two days planning Masses and attending discussions there.

Ten Little Indians

Anticipation of the school play was built up weeks before the performance, as mysterious Indians with painted faces could be seen throughout the halls. A series of spine-chilling announcements doubled the excitement.

Under the guidance of Mrs. Stacy and Miss Kentrup, two sets of casts practiced for the big night. Each cast performed one night, with the better cast displaying their talents on the third night also.

Agatha Christie's "whodunit" produced many theories as to the identity of the murderer, but everyone was surprised when the guilty person was at last revealed.

1. Pat boles expands on the rightousness of her life.
2. The servant reveals the murder of his wife.
3. Laura Garavaglia arrives, as new secretary.
4. The cast insists that there were nine little Indians.
5. Happy after it's all over!

Ring Ceremony

On May 3, 1974 was the big day when the juniors finally got their rings. Father Apking blessed the rings, the class president, Yogi Wess, read a poem emphasizing friendship.

Each officer picked a ring and presented it to its owner, who then chose another ring and repeated the process.

The rainy day cleared to match the brightness of the new rings, signifying that the unity of the Class of '75 is as strong as ever.

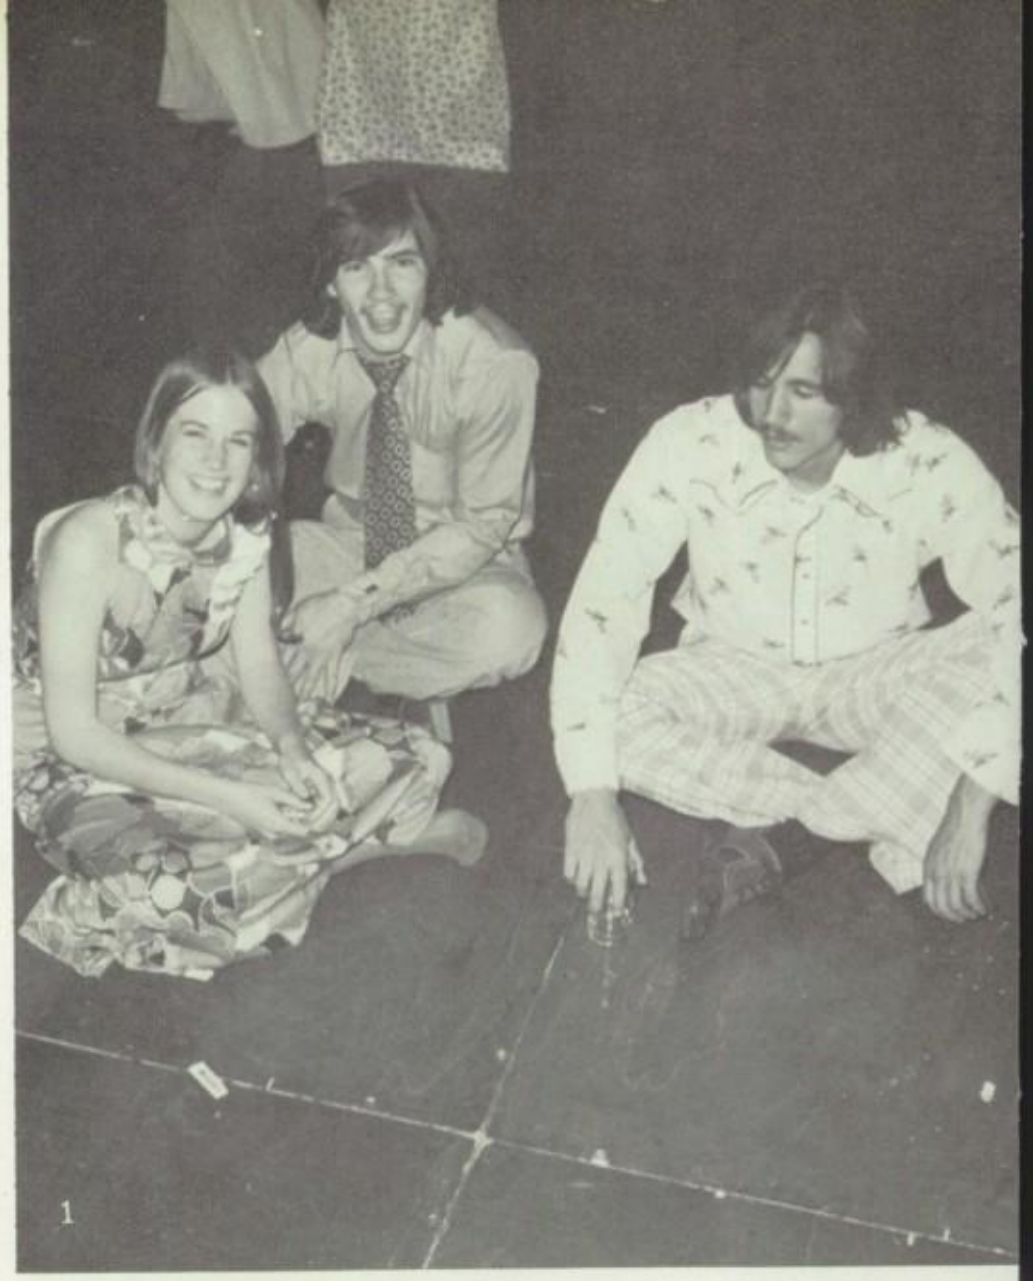
Prom '74

Beverly Hills provided the setting, and Livingston Road provided the music for the 1974 Junior-Senior Prom on May 10. The elegant atmosphere of the Empire Room was just right, as juniors and seniors with their dates danced to a variety of musical numbers.

A very exciting moment occured when Patti Walsh and her date were crowned Queen and King.

Favors for the girls included a nosegay of daisies and a beautiful program containing memories of the evening.

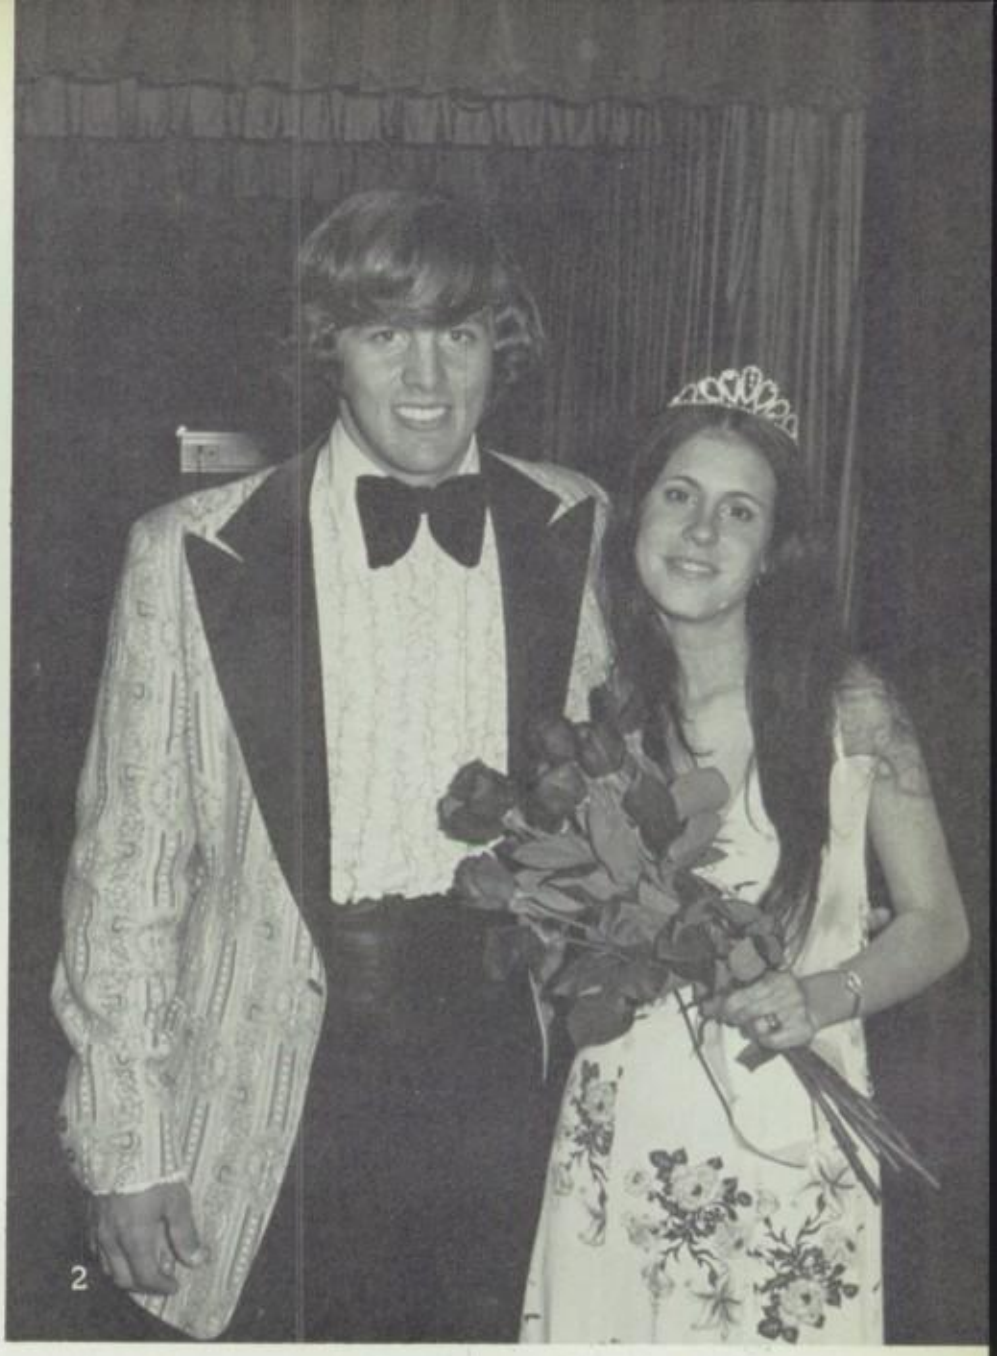
The hard work of the seniors will be generously rewarded when they look back and remember their Senior Prom.



1. Did Yogi have two dates?
2. Kathy Bradley, Peggy Plaatji, and Ola Echoles offer their thanks to a few people.
3. Juniors and seniors dance the night away.

1. . . . and the beat goes on.
2. Seniors and their dates take a break.

1. Who pulled a fast one on Brenda Eslinger?
2. Did you ever see such a crowded dance floor?
3. Mr. McKinney accepts the award for his wife.



1. Patty Walsh is congratulated after the crowning.
2. King and Queen, Mike Brinck and Patty Walsh
3. The Court--Claire Fitzpatrick, Diane Powers, Pat Boles (First Attendant), Patty Walsh (Queen), Kathy Bradley, Mary Reekers (Second Attendant).

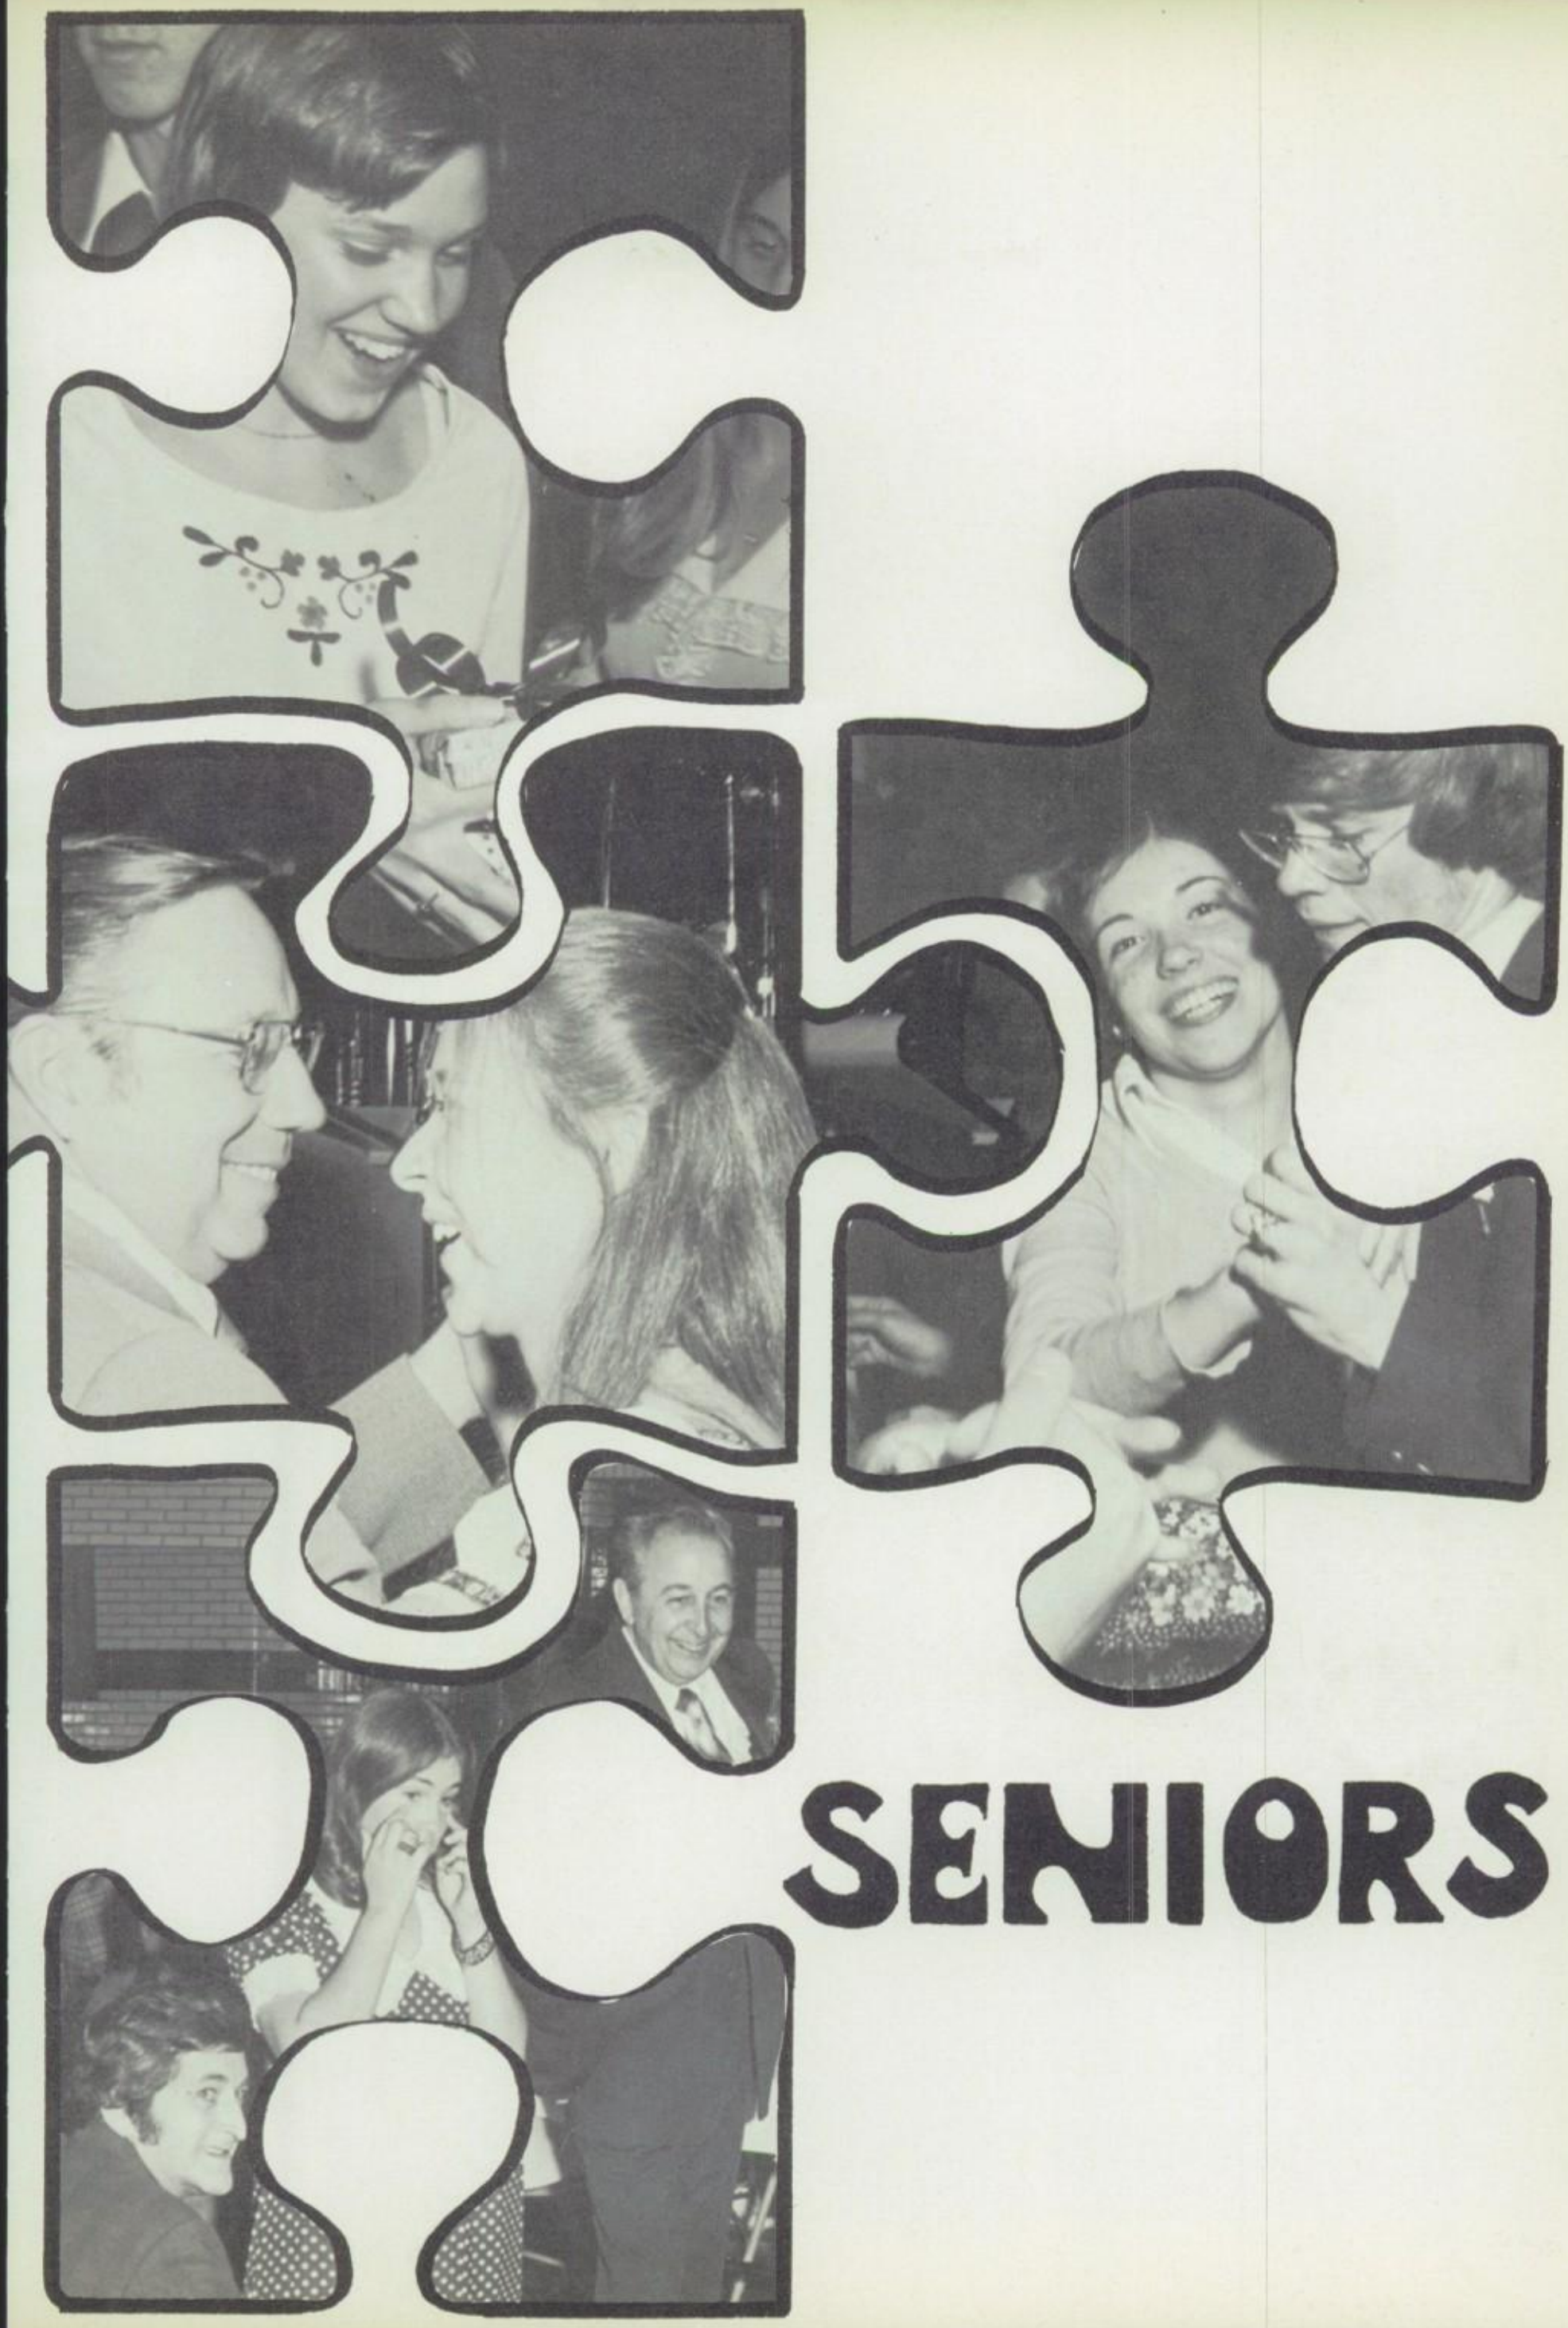
1, 2. Seniors receive Communion.
3. Graduates anxiously wait for their names to be called.
4. Mary Fricke receives her diploma.



SENIORS

Senior Class

As our best year started, seniors experienced the thrill of being oldest in the school. This fact was emphasized when we chose our little sisters. As big sisters, our job was to set an example for freshmen--and did we!

As the year went on, we participated for the last time in all drives, and, believe it or not, we won the ad drive for the third year in a row.

Our high school life was brought to an end--all too fast for most of us. During our last month, we practiced for graduation and received our awards.

The Class of '74 will try to live up to our motto: "Making Friends for the World to See-'74 Forever!"

Juniors

Overpowering spirit was shown by the Class of '75 when we won the fall Paper Drive, the Can Drive, and for the third successive year, the Chance Drive.

Class activities also included our canoe trip, car wash, dances, overnight, senior dinner, and ring ceremony. We produced "Alfred Cancock Presents," which encouraged the collection of canned goods for the poor too.

The loss of one of our classmates, Amy Luedeke, helped us realize that we must all live our lives to the fullest, just as she did.

We hope the Class of '75 will always be so unified and powerful.

Thanks to the best--the Class of '75!

Freshmen

The freshmen participated in many drives and should be proud of their accomplishments. We often gave the upperclassmen a scare when we came through unexpectedly. We almost won the Can Drive and surprised everyone by bringing in more money than any other class at our festival booth. Our best remembrances, perhaps, are of Senior-Freshie Day.

On the whole, the Class of '77 has been great, and we shall continue to show our pride in OLA.

A Tribute

Amy Luedeke had a lot of friends here at school. Some of us knew her better than others, but all of us know that when Amy died, she took something with her. She took her humor, her quick wit, her kindness, and her sense of understanding. But she left us all something. She left memories of herself, and in these memories we see a little bit of all the things Amy took with her. We will all remember Amy as a truly beautiful person.
